DE MAR WINS THIRD MARATHON

ZUNA 2D, CARLSON THIRD

Record Holder Leads by Wide Margin at Close of 25-Mile Race

Clarence H. DeMar, thirty-five, of Melrose Post of the American Legion, today won the B. A. A. Marathon for a third time. He covered the twenty-five-mile course from Ashland to the B. A. A. in two hours 23 minutes 47 2-5 seconds.

This is the first time the same runner has won the Unicorn race three times.

De Mar established the course record last year when he made the distance in 2 hours 18 minutes 10 seconds. And as in 1922, the winner wrested the lead from his nearest competitor in the last five miles after a gruelling struggle.

Frank Zuna, winner in 1921, came second, less than two minutes back of De Mar and almost four minutes slower than his winning mark. His time was 2 hours, 25 minutes, 30 2-5 seconds.

Wallis Carlson of Svithiod A. A., of Chicago, finished with a hopeless sprint in 3 hours, 27 minutes 10 4-5 seconds. He made a game try to beat Zuna.

Albert R. Michelsen of Cygnet A. A. of Stamford, Ct., who fought all the way to Coolidge Corner for leadership, was fourth in two hours 28 minutes 27½ seconds.

Michelsen and De Mar fought one of the most gruelling running duels ever known in the annals of the sport. For miles at a stretch, less than a yard separated them, whiteless than 100 yards stretched between the leader and the ten men most of the distance.

DE MAR IS SLOWED UP.

De Mar, who was hampered in his breathing by a cold, was further handicapped seriously when he collided with a bicycle rider at the Brookline reservoir and tore off the heel of one of his shoes.

This bothered him greatly and, in the opinion of running experts, slowed him by many seconds.

Two members of the Finnish-American A. A. of New York, landed fifth and sixth. Gunnar Nilson's time was 2 hours 29 minutes and 40 seconds. Nestor Erickson was six and a half seconds behind.

Carl W. Linder of Boston, a member of the B. A. A. and winner of the 1919 classic, sprinted to the stubhouse ahead of his old rival Bill Kennedy of the Morningside A. C. of New York, winner in 1917. Linder's time was 2 hours 30 minutes 2 seconds.

Kennedy covered the course in 2 hours 33 minutes and 47 seconds.

Joe Conto, of New York, ran ninth

FIVE PERISH IN LYNN FIRE

Fourteen Injured In Hospital; Score Are Saved at Blaze

Five persons are known to be dead following fire that swept Essex Castle apartment house at No. 4 Ellis street, Lynn, today. Two are reported dying at Lynn Hospital where twelve other victims are under treatment. One hundred and thirty persons are homeless and suffering from minor injuries.

The loss is estimated at more than $250,000.

State police are pushing an investigation to determine the cause and find why there were no fire escapes on the building.

These officers—William F. Murray, Richard McCann and Fred S. Kirlin—learned that the construction of the building was stopped fifteen years ago by the Lynn building department after building inspectors had reported the place a "fire trap." Radical changes were made in plans and the construction permitted to resume after three months.

Rescue work was hampered in several instances by mothers who refused to permit firemen or policemen to carry them to safety until their children had been saved.

Twice it was necessary for rescuers to use force before women could be removed from the blazing building.

Firemen and police distinguished themselves by their heroism. Repeatedly they risked death to clamber up flame-swept ladders.

FIVE DEAD, TWO DYING IN LYNN APARTMENT HOUSE FIRE HORROR

MANY INJURED AS FLAMES SWEEP FIVE STORY BLOCK

Three life nets were used and fifteen or so adults leaped to safety and five youngsters were thrown to the nets by terrorized women. Two women struck telephone wires when they jumped.

The scenes at the fire were the most ghastly in the history of Lynn. The black forms of two of the victims were seen through the flames making a desperate fight to reach windows.

A score or more persons hung far out over the sills begging piteously for help while the flames licked the carpets at their feet.

ESCAPE CUT OFF.

Between four and five hundred persons from the immediate neighborhood, driven out when the fire threatened their homes, stood in mute horror when they saw Police Sergeant Arthur McDonald cut off from all escape in a chamber on the third floor.

McDonald, accompanied by Patrolman Edward Kelley, climbed a blazing ladder to save the two children of Mrs. G. A. Wilkins.

The sergeant, seeing there was great danger of the floor collapsing, sent Kelley ahead with one child while he waited with the other. Kelley had carried the second youngster to the street when there came a burst of flames that wrapped around the sergeant.

Cut off in every direction, McDonald raised his hands high above his head and leaped in the general direction of a life net. He is at Lynn Hospital with a concussion of the brain and burns. Little hope is held for his recovery.

WOMAN ON A VISIT.

The list of dead was definitely put at five persons when Mrs. Alma Gilman, tenant of a third floor suite in Essex Castle, was found to be on a holiday visit to her parents in Athol.

Mrs. Gilman is bookkeeper for the Lynnwood Ice Cream Company of Lynn. She could not be located in the first check-up of victims and survivors.

Firemen later entered her suite and found her bed had not been slept in last night. Inquiry at her place of employment brought information that Mrs. Gilman had left the city yesterday.

James Crawford and his wife also were rescued from their apartment.

WANDERS AWAY.

Miss Alice M. Merriman, forty years old, one of the first rescued, was carried from her apartment by Patrolman John J. Rock to a waiting ambulance. When picked up he clothes were afire.

Wishing to save time, the ambulance driver waited to carry other victims. When he returned Miss Merriman was missing. A search failed to disclose any trace of her.

Later the police were called to the home of Mrs. Horatio Gleason at No. 15 Graves avenue, two miles distant, where Miss Merriman had wandered and fallen unconscious on the threshold. She is dying at Lynn Hospital.

LEAP INTO NETS.

One of the most seriously injured, Mrs. Bertha A. Lane, was hurt when she leaped from a third floor window and struck against telephone wires and bounced into a life net.

An unidentified woman hit against the same wires, but managed to strike the centre of the net. She escaped with a few minor bruises.

Patrolman Ames, who sounded the alarm when informed of the fire by John Fenton, suffered a fracture of the left wrist when the woman's body struck.

It was while these women were jumping that the first of the five babies were tossed to firemen by panic-stricken mothers.

CHILDREN SAVED.

The children escaped unharmed, although the net holders experienced great difficulty in getting the net under one of the youngsters."

Every available ladder in the Lynn Fire Department was erected against the building. Some delay was caused at first by the network of telephone wires which were in such position that the firemen had to manoeuvre considerably before being able to get one in place.

It was because of this that the lifenets were used so much. In all Chief Edward Chase figures that fifteen adults owe their lives to the three nets.

Fully a score of persons were carried down ladders. These rescues were intensely thrilling. Firemen figures stood out in terrifying relief against forks of flames that darted in and out among the ladder rungs as firemen moved up and down carrying out victims.

RESCUES WOMAN AND CHILD.

A close call, in which the huge form of Patrolman Jeremiah Hickey was seen to emerge slowly from a blazing window with a woman tucked under one arm and a child under the other.

Willing hands were extended to him by brother officers who sped up the ladder to assist him, but he carried his double burden to the ground.

Less than five minutes later Patrolman Joseph T. Coyne crawled out of a third floor window with a child clinging to his neck and another youngster hugged to his side.

These two officers, with Patrolman Rock, hammered in the front door of the house. A wall of flames rolled toward them. Drawing up their collars they plunged through to the door of suite No. 2. This they battered in with night sticks.

ROPE OF BLANKETS.

Arousing Mrs. Laura Muldoon, they wrapped her and her fourteen-year-old son in blankets and fought their way back to the street. All three policemen were burned and suffered from smoke, but refused to make any note of their hurts.

A rope made of knotted blankets was used by Mr. and Mrs. James Farrell and their nine-year-old daughter, Ruth, tenants on the third floor.

Ollie Erickson, a next-door neighbor, aroused the Farrells. Before Mrs. Farrell could get out of her bed flames came racing across the floor. Her feet were burned.

Several families on the second floor reached safety by using ladders of sheets and blankets. One of these is reported as having broken with its load, causing slight injury to a man.

LEAPS TO MATTRESS.

One white-haired man, who had a suite in the rear second floor, threw his mattress out of the window and then leaped. Police, expecting to find him harmed, were surprised when he got up and walked away.

Three black kittens were found under debris on the third floor by Deputy Chief William Welch. He carried them down a ladder to the street. They scampered off unharmed.

Two Russian wolf hounds escaped the ravages of the blaze in the cellar. They were the property of George Philpott, whose charred body was found upstairs.

As soon as the ruins cooled searchers started hunting for bodies of victims. While firemen were pouring thousands of gallons of water in one end of the building police were prodding about the other. Several were burned slightly seeking bodies.

ANXIOUS RELATIVES.

Throngs of anxious friends and relatives of tenants of Essex Castle jammed the streets either side of the ill-fated building waiting for news of loved ones. The scenes were heart rending.

Two ambulances were used to carry the victims to the undertaking rooms of John C. Donovan and E. P. Haven. Whenever the police would rest a blackened form in the house there would be such a surging of the eager that at times difficulty was experienced in preserving order.

The streets near the undertaking rooms were packed with the anxious and morbidly curious and during the day hundreds passed through both establishments.

The one bit of cheer of the day came when George Kearn, owner of the Ruth apartments at Roger avenue and Essex street, offered one week's free lodging to all the 130 homeless victims of the holocaust.

BRIDE OF SIX MONTHS.

All of the dead were well known in Lynn. Mrs. Antonetta Abeaudelette Hanlon was the wife of "Dick" Hanlon, one of the best known figures in the city. He was in New York when the fire took place. They were married less than six months.

Miss Margaret Quitter was seventy years old. For many years she was manager of the Western Union office in South Station, Boston, and gavethat up eight years ago to become manager of the Lynn office. She was persuaded a year ago. She was originally from Brunswick, Me.

Exalted Ruler William Powers of Lynn Lodge of Elks identified Philpott at Donovan's undertaking rooms. He was investigating to find if any Elks were suffering from the fire. He said Philpott had been a widely known and respected member of the organization.

MAKES FOUR TRIPS.

William Patron, forty-eight years old, a tenant, made four trips into the burning building to rescue persons. He is in Lynn Hospital with severe burns about the face and hands. His condition is dangerous.

Police Sergeant William J. McLaughlin, accompanied by Patrolman Joseph Coyne and another policeman, rescued Mrs. Eppie King, barely escaping with their lives.

Patrolman Patrick Dugan rushed into the building and succeeded in leading out Mr. and Mrs. William H. Wallen.

The Red Cross depot was thrown open, and every effort made to take care of the refugees, most of whom had been huddled into the Boston & Maine Railroad station, about 100 yards from the building.

Throughout the entire time of the fire, men, women and children, who had become separated from their families, frantically searched the crowds, calling the names of loved ones, in a vain hope that the missing persons had not been trapped in the building.

The apartment was owned by the heirs of Thomas O'Shay of Peabody. Property damage was estimated at not less than $100,000.

DISTRICT MENACED.

Essex Castle is in the centre of the apartment house district of Lynn, and is entirely surrounded by frame buildings. Danger of spreading was so great that families within a radius of a quarter of a mile moved their furniture to the street, or bundled up their valuables in readiness to flee to safety in case a wind should arise and cause the fire to spread.

Numbers of the trapped tenants were rescued by firemen working from ladders, and by means of sheets improvised by bed clothing and other materials available. The tipping of a ladder or the burning of a rope resulted several times in injury to rescuer and rescued.

Mrs. Cross Saw Baby Saved, Then Leaped to Fire Net

Mrs. Margaret Cross, one of the women rescued and taken to the home of her mother-in-law, Mrs. L. J. Cross, at No. 19 School street, said:

"All I could hear was screams; all I could see was flames and smoke.

"I lived in suite 29 on the second floor in the central part of the building.

"My first thought was Larry, my baby, three and one-half years old.

"Before I realized what I could do my brother-in-law, Earl Cross, rushed into the room with hardly any clothing on, grabbed Larry and shouted: 'For God's sake, Margie, run to the window and jump into the fire net!'

"I was so alarmed for the baby that I could not leave the room until I saw Earl rushing out with Larry in his arms.

"Then I went to the window and saw the firemen with the life-net below in the street. After hesitating, looking back into the room, where the flames were coming in through the door, I jumped.

"The next thing I knew I was in the ambulance on my way to the hospital. I kept inquiring if Larry was safe. I was told by the officers that he was. After being treated at the hospital I was taken to my mother-in-law's home. I rushed into the house and saw Larry sleeping soundly in bed.

"I picked him up, waking him from sound sleep, and kissed and kissed him."

"I Asked for Fire Escapes," Says Man in Charge

Charles E. Lewis, superintendent of the barged apartment block, who occupied suite 49 in the basement, said he had often suggested to the agent of the building that fire escapes be put on.

"I was up as late as midnight last night," said Lewis, "and everything was quiet and orderly at that time. In fact, the occupants of the house were in at a much earlier hour than is customary on the night before a holiday.

"I retired about 12:30. My first knowledge of any fire came when I heard the shrieks of women. I knew something was wrong. I dressed hurriedly, rushed out of the basement up to the first floor and on my way up smelled smoke.

"Before I reached the first floor I noticed the hitchen heat and realized immediately that there was a fire.

"I rushed to nearby doors of suites on the first floor and did all I could to arouse the tenants until the heat and smoke forced me out of the building."

Summerly and Family Taken Down Ladders

Mr. and Mrs. Michael H. Summerly and four-year-old daughter Viola were taken down ladders by firemen from their third-floor suite. Mr. Summerly, who was burned on head and face, said later at Lynn Hospital:

"I can't remember now exactly how I got out of the building alive. I was awakened by the crackling of flames. I roused my wife, picked up Viola and heard everybody in the building screaming and yelling.

"I did not dare open the door into the hallway for fear lest the flames would sweep right into our suite.

"That had hardly come to my mind when the flames burst through the transom over the door. It seemed as though the fire engulfed our room in a second.

"Before we could dress both my wife and myself and our daughter were burned.

"I opened a window and, as I remember, there were two firemen on ladders. They assisted my wife out. She had the baby in her arms. I followed. We were taken down the ladders and to the hospital."

Unable to Aid, Saw Women Leap to Death

"I hope I may never again see anything so dreadful. I saw two aged women hanging from window sills with flames around them. I saw an aged woman jump from a fourth-floor window, hit a ladder on the way down and turn a complete somersault, while her gray hair streamed out from her head."

This from an eye-witness of the Lynn fire catastrophe, John C. Donovan, tenant of a block opposite the School street side of the Essex Castle apartments.

"I was awakened by the screams of men and women. I could hear plainly the words: 'Fire, fire! Help —Help—For God's sake bring us help.'

"I hustled out of bed, put on my trousers, looked out the window and saw a spectacle that I never saw before and hope I shall never see again as long as I live.

"I rushed out of the house. The firemen were just getting there. I helped put up ladders and assisted the firemen in opening the fire net. As there were only few spectators there at that time, I asked for volunteers to help hold the net while the firemen went up the ladders.

"I made an effort to get into the house but the building was a roaring furnace in five minutes and I was driven back by smoke and flames."

Cop Tells How Fire Victims Were Caught

Patrolman Abram C. Ames, who discovered the fire and pulled in the first alarm, told this story of the Lynn fire disaster:

"I had just come from Central square, where I had rung in a box call, and was standing at Union and Buffum streets. My attention was attracted to the direction of Ellis street. I noticed flames shooting in the air.

"I rushed to Box 461 at Silsbee and Union streets, sounded an alarm and, with a chap named Fenton, ran to Ellis street. I knew that, with flames of this extent, nobody would be needed at the box to direct firemen to the fire scene itself.

AIDED TENANTS.

"I ran over to the burning block. I saw people at windows on the third floor. I heard their shouting for help. I warned them not to jump, as the firemen were on their way.

"I rushed into the first floor, rapped on six doors and assisted three persons out.

"I went back and up to the second floor and helped tenants there, many of whom were fighting their way down.

PRAISES THE FIREMEN.

"I tried to get up to the third floor. I groped my way along the hallway through the smoke, but was forced back.

"I returned to the street, ran around all sides of the building and encouraged the people on the window sills to hold on and wait for the firemen. By this time ladders were going up on all sides of the building.

"I want to say that the firemen did heroic work in getting ladders up in such short time and in making rescues.

"I have seen many fires as a policeman, but never saw anything so terrible as this in the way people were trapped."

Irish Complexion Ziegfeld's Recipe for Beauty

Chicago, April 19.—Italian eyes, an Irish complexion and an American figure—this simple cosmopolitan combination is the recipe for ideal beauty.

It came straight from Florenz Ziegfeld, Jr., "Follies" producer, and considered the foremost judge of good looks.

Mr. Ziegfeld's primary interest in coming to Chicago was not to find a new type of beauty, but to visit his father.

BACK BAY WOMAN ROBBED ON STREET

A snatch thief approached Ella R. Guesenheimer of No. 736 Commonwealth avenue, Suite No. 2, Back Bay, while she was walking at Boylston and Helmenway streets, Back Bay, seized her handbag and disappeared in the direction of Massachusetts avenue. Patrolmen, who were attracted to the scene, arrived too late to give chase.

'IT'S A HELL OF A WORLD!' SAYS GIRL SUICIDE

Pittsburgh, Pa., April 19 (By International News Service).—The body of a pretty girl not more than twenty years old, who left a letter signed Ruth A. Hardy, Denver, Colo., before she committed suicide by swallowing poison, was identified here today as that of Eleanor Orr, of Corapolis, a suburb. The girl ended her life in a hotel.

The girl left a letter in which she scored society for "inhuman treatment" and made a strong plea for the downfallen girl.

"This is a hell of a world. Love is my mother," was a postscript to the note she left.

(ternational News Service).—A body

The girl's note follows:

"Please don't cause notoriety on my part, but do publish this. My final wish is to have the world know that every day it is the cause of many a girl's steadfast inclination to do worse and worse.

"Just because a girl has done wrong, often through force, people, so-called human beings, throw them aside and don't give them a chance. Society and so forth are nothing but a damnation.

"What a girl needs is love, education and manners to counteract their faults. Hell couldn't be worse than this earth. Society—huh—a lot of hypocrites that keep their wrongs from observation with the aid of money and friends, though there isn't such a thing as friend.

"Please give the unfortunate girl a chance. Don't throw her open to public opinion, don't shut her in the reformatories and, after a couple of years, except her to be a good angel. It will have hardened her to the world. What she needs is real love and someone to comfort her, not to constantly remind her of her little wrong."

Poor Gentle Maniacs
What Do You Read?
Unions in Capitalism
The Cheapest Costs Most

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1923, Star Co.

THE MANIACS of Ward Island have tried six times within a few weeks to set their asylum on fire.

"Poor crazy things," says everybody.

"Can't they realize that they would be victims of the flames?" Yes, and what about the other maniacs, called statesmen, in Europe, that constantly set their places on fire with war? Can't they realize that they must be victims of the war? And what about gentle maniacs over here that would force us, through a League of Nations, or a World Court, to underwrite and become responsible for Europe's war fires? How will you cure them? "We must join the League of Nations," or "We must become part of a World Court," say the gentle sentimental maniacs of this country.

Why "must?" Is there anything in particular the matter with you now? Are you not safe in your asylum with an ocean on either side. You are not in the league or the World Court now. Is anything dreadful happening to you on that account? Be grateful for comfort and safety, prosperity and freedom from war complications. Don't insist on setting fire to your nice asylum. You poor things.

"TELL ME what you read and I'll tell you what you are."

Nothing much in that saying. Darwin read fairy stories in the evening to rest his mind from the study of earth-worms or the problem "How did the eye first start." Fairy stories did not tell what he was.

You cannot judge Americans by the fact that 99 per cent. of them will read with interest news appearing under headings such as:

Jack Johnson, the negro fighter, is asked to fight in Havana, and fined $2 for speeding.

THE YOUNG girls of Vassar College are forbidden to go shopping on roller skates. They used to skate two miles to the store, then toddle around the shop on skates. "Undignified," the faculty says, "very cunning," the average man will say.

DE VALERA WILL soon be caught. He is hiding in a cave, Free State soldiers are trying to get him out with smoke bombs. Barring a new Irish party, the Free State will soon have peace, and only Ulster to worry about.

AN ITALIAN peasant shoots a priest for refusing him absolution.

FIVE RUSSIAN officers executed for spying.

A HIGH COURT decides that a city cannot sue a newspaper for libel, no matter what the newspaper says about the city.

AND FINALLY, a witness testified that a drugless healer combined "much petting and intimate affection" with healing processes. The "healer" replied with "God is love," and what can you say to that?

IT IS A GOOD sign when labor unions enter "capitalistic" fields of effort. Recently unions have started banks and trust companies. Locomotive engineers built great office buildings and start several banks.

Now the stationary engineers offer to buy three government vessels, to start a union-owned steamship line. Their idea is to have eventually 110 vessels operating all over the world.

Competing with capitalism will do the unions good, make them understand capital's troubles, and

U. S. MOVES ON SUGAR GOUGERS

Injunction Asked in New York to Stop Speculating in Futures

Washington, April 19.—In-junction proceedings to shut off completely trading in sugar futures were instituted in New York today by the federal government.

The Government's bill, prepared under the personal direction of Attorney-General Daugherty after consultation with President Harding, asks the court to prevent permanently the New York coffee and sugar exchange from entering into or permitting any transactions in sugar, "unless the person purporting to make such sale has in his possession or control a supply of sugar adequate to meet the requirements of such transaction."

The action is requested, the Government says, as a result of "an orgy of speculation," which has driven up the price of sugar to the consumer and which during February enriched the pocketbooks of brokers by $900,000.

CONSPIRACY CHARGED.

A "conspiracy in restraint of trade and commerce" is charged and officials of the exchange and of the New York Coffee and Sugar Clearing House Association, against which the injunction would be directed, jointly with the exchange, are asked to appear in court and answer the Government's allegations.

The court was advised in the bill that the exchange and the Clearing House Association serve no legitimate or useful purpose in the marketing in interstate and foreign commerce of raw and refined sugar, but "exist only as a means of conducting and speculating."

As a result, it was added, price

EDWARDS LEADS MARCH

Cox and Coolidge Review Holiday Event at the State House

Veterans of the Civil, Spanish and World Wars, with women nurses who served overseas in the last and greatest of these conflicts, marched in parade through Boston streets today in the first State celebration of Patriots' Day.

Ten thousand marched and hundreds of thousands cheered them.

Major-General Clarence R. Edwards walked at the head of the parade as chief marshal.

Immediately following him was his staff of veterans who had won honor in military service.

REVIEW AT STATE HOUSE.

Vice-President Calvin Coolidge and Mrs. Coolidge were with Governor and Mrs. Cox on the State House reviewing stand from which the Vice-President, as Governor of this Commonwealth, had often reviewed previous civil or military demonstrations.

Music from eleven bands crashed out on the crisp April air in rythmic inspiration for marchers and spectators alike.

Units of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Massachusetts National Guard held the right of line.

The parade started at 10:30 from Arlington street and Commonwealth avenue. The route was:

Arlington, Boylston, Tremont Winter, Washington, Schoo, Beacon and Charles streets to the Public Garden, where the marchers were dismissed.

ROSTER OF PARADE.

The order of parade was as follows:

Detail of mounted police.

Chief Marshal, Major-General Clarence R. Edwards, and Staff, consisting of Colonel John W. Ryatt, Chief of Staff; Colonel George Williams, Lieutenant-Colonel

General Finds His Luncheon Guest Is Deserter

Chicago, April 19.—Brigadier General George Moseley gamely kept an obligation to dine a guest, who turned out to be an army deserter, and then lodged the latter in the guard house.

Informed that a "Mr. Mason" had an important letter from him from the Secretary of War, the general told his orderly to ask "Mr. Mason" to lunch with him at his club. "Mr. Mason" accepted.

Upon opening the letter the general found that the bearer was a deserter from the army and was ordered to report to Fort Sheridan. The general finished his luncheon with his guest and then locked him up.

FLYER TO RESCUE 10 WHO ARE STARVING ON ISLE

Selfridge Field, Mount Clemens, Mich., April 19.—First Lieutenant E. C. Whitehead left here today in a Curtis airplane to fly 225 miles to South Fox Island, in ice-bound Lake Michigan, to take food to nine starving men and a woman. Only one stop will be made en route, at Bay City, where gasoline will be taken aboard.

By the Associated Press.

Northport, Mich., April 20.—Cold, exhausted and half-starved, three men who for forty-eight hours battered their way through slush, ice and open water, reached the mainland bearing news that ten others—nine men and a woman—are slowly starving on Fox Island, eighteen miles from here in Lake Michigan.

As a result of their story—a story of a battle against great odds, in which human lives were constantly at the mercy of sweeping gales and shifting ice packs—two army airplanes are driving through the sky today to carry food to the marooned party.

The party went to the island last Fall to cut timber, carrying provisions sufficient for several months. The prolonged Winter, however, did

MASKED JAZZER DANCES 88 HOURS

Cleveland, April 19.—A new world's record for continuous dancing—eighty-eight hours—was set here today by Arthur Howard Klein, when he quit dancing at 6 a. m., at a Cleveland Heights dancing academy. Klein, wearing a mask, started dancing at 2 p. m., Sunday.

At 9 a. m., Miss Duvall and Miss June Curry were still dancing at the same hall in an effort to break all marathon dancing records. They were the last of the Cleveland contestants. At that hour Miss Duvall had danced seventy-nine hours and twenty minutes and Miss Curry seventy-eight hours.

Both were reported in good physical condition and said they expected to continue for several hours.

Miss Rose Smith, another contestants, quit today after dancing seventy-seven hours and forty-five minutes. She gave up because her feet were sore.

Klein, the present holder of the record, is twenty-six years old and a trained athlete. He set out to capture the championship by systematic dieting and exercise, as a means of supporting his wife and baby, according to his friends.

Cleveland Heights authorities refused to allow the public to witness Klein's performance, limiting attendance to dancing partners and judges.

SON OF MORSE IS UNDER ARREST

Washington, April 19.—Harry F. Morse surrendered himself today to the District of Columbia Supreme Court and immediately was placed under arrest on a bench warrant is sued for him last Monday by Justice Stafford, after his $10,000 bail bond had been declared forfeited.

Morse was arraigned and entered a formal plea of "not guilty" to indictments charging him, his two brothers, Ervin and Benjamin, his father, Charles W. Morse, and four others with conspiracy to defraud the Federal government through wartime ship contracts.

GERMAN STATE BANK LET MARK COLLAPSE

Berlin, April 19 (By the Associated Press).—Berlin financial writers are virtually unanimous in attributing the mark's latest crash to a change in tactics of the Reichsbank which, they say, had thrown large quantities of foreign moneys upon the market to keep German currency stable.

In well-informed quarters it is said the Reichsbank withdraws its intervention only temporarily to give the speculators a complete right of way for a time, but some day it will swoop down suddenly and again restore the mark to sobriety.

In some circles it is said the Reichsbank decided several days ago it could not pursue its recent course in support of the mark, but on the urgent plea of the government made one last attempt to stay the oncoming flood of depreciation.

This final effort, the press says, cost another 5,000,000 pounds, or just about the amount subscribed to the $5,000,000 loan Germany recently launched as a means of obtaining foreign currencies with which to keep the mark steady.

GINNELL'S BODY LIES IN STATE

New York, April 19.—The body of Laurence Ginnell, Irish Republican leader, who died in Washington, reached here today and lies in state at the Carmelite Church on East 28th street until tomorrow morning, when a solemn high mass of requiem will be sung. The body will be taken to Ireland for burial on the steamship President Roosevelt Saturday.

LIFER BARR, LIKE OLD KING LEAR, WEEPS OVER CHILDREN

ANGUISH OF LIFER IS PATHETIC

Parole Postponed by Council; Wonders Why Daughters Are Against Him

By HAROLD B. HALL.

In a dingy, narrow cell at State prison there was enacted today the tragedy of a modern Lear.

When the first grey streaks of dawn broke through the murky darkness of the tiny cell they disclosed a little, old man sitting on the edge of his prison cot with his white head buried in his horny hands.

Now and then the pathetic figure shook from head to foot. Now and then a choking sob burst from the old man's throat. He was not weeping. He had wept for hours through the night. He could weep no more.

20TH CENTURY LEAR.

The old man—this twentieth century Lear—was James Barr, "lifer," whose children have stepped between him and freedom after he served twenty-three years in prison for a crime that calls down a sentence oftimes of less than ten years.

How like King Lear is this old man.

Lear had three daughters: Goneril, Regan and Cordelia.

Barr has three daughters: Isabella, Elizabeth and Susan.

Two of Lear's daughters cast him off in his old age. One was faithful unto death.

All of Barr's daughters have cast him off. Isabella, Elizabeth and Susan have deserted their father in his hour of need. There is no Cordelia in the Barr family.

Barr, in prison for life, is pleading for freedom. He asks the Governor and his Council to commute his sentence to thirty years, so he may be eligible for parole. Twenty-three years within prison walls have changed Jim Barr from a stalwart, young man with springing step to a broken, little, old man, who will soon be called to the feet of his Maker.

In the autumn of his life Jim Barr asks his freedom. But when he needs the friendship of his daughters, he, like King Lear, finds them arrayed against him.

DENOUNCED FATHER.

Isabella Barr stood before the Parole Board and in ringing tones denounced her father. She told the board that she wanted none of him. That he would be a menace to society if given his liberty. She said that she and her sisters and her mother did not want him at their home; that they wanted him to be held in prison until he dies.

"She hath abated me of half my train;
Looked black upon me; struck me with her tongue,
Most serpent-like, upon the very heart."

Cried King Lear in anguish when his daughter, Regan, turned him from her door into the blackness of the night and bade him begone.

"The fact that my children have turned against me hurts me deeper than spending my remaining years in prison," said Jim Barr, when the writer talked with him in the prison at Charlestown.

"Oh, why have my children turned against me like this," he cried, as he broke down and wept like a little child.

"I shall not go to Fitchburg to my daughters' home if I am released. I shall not trouble my daughters with their old father. I shall go to the strangers who are waiting to take me in."

Thus spoke Barr—the modern Lear.

Broken in health, bruised of heart, he sits in his little cell at Charlestown today sobbing—and there is no Cordelia in the Barr family.

LOCK OUT 120,000 IN ENGLAND

London, April 19.—One hundred and twenty thousand ship building employes were today locked out by their employers as a result of a wage dispute. Intervention by Ramsey MacDonald, laborite, and member of the opposition in the House of Parliament, has resulted in a provisional basis of settlement of the farm laborers' strike. About 20,000 farm laborers have been on strike for about a month.

Nearly everybody knows what a satisfactory floor covering Congoleum is. But perhaps all do not know that we sell more of it than any other store in the United States except one. We state this merely to show you why our assortments are so large and why the newest patterns will always be found here.

Besides being beautiful and economical these rugs are exceedingly easy to take care of—just a light mopping leaves them spotlessly clean. There are no untidy "curled up" edges, either.

Our usual guarantee of satisfaction goes with these rugs, because the "hurts" are so slight that they will not affect the wearing quality.

JUANITA STOLE DRUG IN DOCTOR'S OFFICE

By JUANITA HANSEN

Copyright, 1923, by N. Y. American.

FOURTEEN WEEKS IN VAUDEVILLE!

My contract was finished—almost the finish of me, also.

In spite of the Devil's plaything, the tour was a success. This prompted offers to play other vaudeville circuits. But fourteen weeks of vaudeville was quite enough for me.

Again my one thought was home and mother.

Tired and worn out, sick at heart, exhausted, I returned to Los Angeles.

WHY SHOULD I BE BOUND TO THIS CURSED CHAIN?

I was tired of it all, of everything. What was the use? Many hours I spent in thought over this problem.

WOULD I NEVER BE CURED?

When I returned to Los Angeles, it was but a few days before the Christmas holidays, 1921. I spent the holidays with my mother. But they were not "holidays" for me. I tried to bring Christmas joy to the people I loved; but there was no joy in my life at that time.

Pretense, only pretense again! What would be the end?

But two weeks of rest, California sunshine, and my mother's love in spite of my recently renewed habit, and I gained in weight. I had an offer then of a film production in San Francisco.

After I had finished this production I returned home for a few days; then back to San Francisco.

Kept Purpose Secret

I had been in San Francisco only a few days when I read in the papers of the William Desmond Taylor murder in Hollywood. Pages were devoted to this terrible crime, and the Narcotic Ring was connected with it in a way that has never yet been explained.

I read these articles day after day. Reporters were pressing me for interviews regarding people involved, merely because I was from Hollywood. But I had nothing to say. It was during these days that I was most despondent.

I WAS AFRAID.

I was out on the beach alone one day when I firmly made up my mind that I would best this thing once and for all.

And I WOULD DO IT ALONE.

I would not confide in a doctor. I had considerable knowledge of Christian Science. I would go away to the mountains, alone, and work out my problem as best I could, without the aid of anyone.

I WOULD NEVER COME BACK UNTIL I WAS CURED!

Without a word to anyone, other than that I was going to some hot springs, I quietly packed my trunk, stored my other belongings and set out for—Hot Springs.

At that time I was using only cocaine. But a maximum amount. I registered under my own name, which caused me much trouble. I didn't think to change my name. The result was that I was annoyed constantly by curious people who questioned me continually regarding HOLLYWOOD.

The work I had gone there to do was postponed, for I would have had to be alone to do that. I have told you in previous articles that cocaine is not a necessity. If you are strong enough in will power you can break away from it.

I mean that cocaine is unlike heroin or morphine. To me you become part of you. I was weak, and I knew it; and I was ashamed.

I remained at this Hot Springs only a week. One night and two days I spent pacing the floor of my room, trying to find a way out. I liked the Hot Springs all right. The surrounding country was beautiful. But to win my battle I had to be alone, and privacy was impossible there.

"Devil Led the Way"

Then I former a plan; deliberately I chose another path. Cocaine was ruining my health. I could not eat. I could not sleep. I was getting so thin, and I knew very well how I looked.

The plan I formed was a dangerous one. But I would go through with it. I packed my things took a bus to the railroad station. The train was an hour late. I was more one. I was nearly crazy. I had made up my mind to take morphine. I knew it would quiet me.

I had an hour to spare. I had found a pedlar in every town from one end of the country to the other. Why not try my luck here in this little village? It was what is commonly termed a one-horse town.

YES, AS USUAL, THE DEVIL LED THE WAY!

Out of a population of 600 people I picked the right man. How? I learned there were two doctors in town. I never will forget how I stood on the corner by the general store, debating over which one I should go and see.

But I found the right one!

The doctor was out. He had a nurse, though. She admitted me. I had time to look over his stock. I couldn't resist the temptation. I never have stolen a thing in my life—except a tube of morphine from that village doctor.

I had just tucked the little vial of morphine away in my bag when the doctor came in. With a little persuasion, the doctor gave me an other vial. I really felt guilty, but I didn't dare tell him the truth.

Changed Her Poison

Then I went to San Francisco. I remained only one day. Just long enough to look up Mr. Peddler, procure an ounce of morphine and find the name of another Hot Springs. During my journey, I had formed another plan which I proceeded to carry out.

I destroyed every identification mark on my clothings and baggage and set out for another Hot Springs near Chico, Cal.

I took another name. And I was let alone.

Now to carry out the rest of the plan!

I had morphine, and inside of two weeks, I was taking six grains a day. But I was sleeping well every night, eating three meals a day, exercising, taking long walks. And the hot baths helped me to gain a great deal in weight.

When I had returned to San Francisco, to get more drugs and a new Hot Spring location, I had not forgotten the promise I had made to myself: "I would never come back until I was cured."

Now I was bound to morphine. I would have to beat that, too. I looked much better, I felt much better, but, in reality, I was bound tighter to the narcotic chain than I had been two weeks previous on cocaine.

Miss Hansen's next article will appear exclusively in tomorrow's Boston American. Back copies containing these articles may be obtained at No. 80 Summer street.

Her Plan for Cure

NOW FOR THE CURE!

Reduction first, of course! A doctor will never tell you the cure he is giving you. But in those days alone in the mountains, I had plenty of time to figure out what really constituted a reduction cure. I realized it would be a slow process of reduction; but it must be systematic.

THE PLAN.

I was taking six grains a day. I placed sixty grains in a large-necked bottle.

I had figured out that this reduction must be systematic. I must take a shot every two or three hours, whether I needed it or not. I also had figured out that I probably would be awake sixteen hours a day. So, to this same bottle into which I had put the morphine, I added eighty hypodermic syringes of water—carefully measured.

Another part of the plan: Every time I took a syringe full of water out of the large-necked bottle I put back a half syringe of plain water. If I have made my plan clear to you, you can see that I was slowly reducing the amount of the narcotic, because I was diluting it with water every time I took a shot.

At the end of two months I had cut down my shots from a total of six grains a day to one-quarter of a grain!

Tomorrow I will tell you of the terrific fight I had to break away from that final little quarter grain.

One little tiny quarter grain bound me STILL to the Devil's chain.

DARE DEATH IN ICE PACKS FOR STARVING BAND

not enter into their calculations. Three weeks ago all food supplies excepting some frozen potatoes, were gone.

With death from starvation facing the little colony, an attempt was made by four men to cross to the mainland. They started on foot, but two miles from the island the ice broke up and two of the men narrowly escaped death by drowning.

A week later the men started again, but when two miles out they were caught in a blinding snowstorm. Last Monday morning a third start was made. Edward Horn, twenty-three; Carl Cooper, thirty-five, and Elias Sayres, twenty-one, composed the party which left the island in a skiff. They had no food. Nearly starved, they took turns at the oars. They reached safety after many narrow escapes from death.

SCORE FACING ARREST IN KU KLUX CASES

By the Associated Press.

Bastrop, La., April 19.—Warrants for the arrests of nearly a score of Morehouse Parish citizens charging various offences in connection with masked band activities last Summer, which culminated on August 24, the State charges, in the slaying of Watt Daniel and T. F. Richard of Mer Rouge, are in the hands of Sheriff Fred Carpenter.

The most serious of the charges is conspiracy to murder, two such charges being made against Captain J. K. Skipwith, exalted cyclops of the Morehouse Parish Ku Klux Klan, in connection with the Daniel and Richard deaths.

Sheriff Carpenter today notified fifteen of the defendants to surrender personally at the courthouse.

Society People Back from Journeys Abroad, Says Betty Alden

(Photo Copyright by Bachrach)

Miss Muriel Storer, a debutante of the 1922-23 season, who returned from abroad the other day with her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Malcolm Storer of Beacon street.

COMPANION OF MME. BERNHARDT JOBLESS

Paris, April 19.—The following paragraph appeared recently in the "situations Wanted" columns of the Paris newspapers:

"Mme. De Gourmay, aged fifty years, for many years the companion of Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, left free by the sad event of her death, seeks a place as companion, reader or housekeeper. Address No. 4 Rue Orne."

The advertisement brought a fair number of answers. Mme Gourmay told Excelsior she thought she would accept an offer of a place with a Provincial society woman.

BY BETTY ALDEN

THE Malcolm Storers of Beacon street and their daughter Muriel were of the Boston group returning from foreign travels on board the White Star liner Majestic.

Fellow passengers of the Storers included Mrs. John L. Saltonstall of Commonwealth avenue, as well as the Tom Cottmans (Margaret Bennett) of Baltimore. Mrs. Tom, who holds a leading place in the younger married coterie of the Oriole city, is the oldest daughter of Mrs. Stephen Bennett of Boston, her two sisters being Mrs. Edward Cunningham, Jr. (Elizabeth Bennett), and Miss Helen Bennett, who, by the way, has been making her home in Baltimore with sister Margaret for the past year or so. Apropos of Helen Bennett—she has played the role of "leading man" in the Vincent Club show with such consummate skill that the Vincentites are bound to miss her from their ranks.

Speaking of travels abroad, Mr. and Mrs. Howland Twombly of Beacon street sailed for foreign shores on board the Mauretania the other day. On the same boat were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Lamont (Eleanor Miner), bound on their wedding journey. There was quite a Boston representation at the Lamont-Miner nuptials, solemnized on Saturday in Rochester, N. Y. The Misses Cornelia Hallowell, Laura Taylor and Eleanor Winslow, all of the Hub, were of the bridesmaids group, while Paul Cabot, also of Boston, went on to serve in the ushers' corps for the groom, a Harvard man.

IT was a busy day for the matrons whom Mrs. George Richmond Fearing, Jr., had marshalled together to help her with the gown shop which she ran as part of the rummage sale held the other day for the Army and Navy Club.

There were all manner of feminine raiment in the novel "shop"—sport skirts, afternoon dresses and filmy frocks for evening wear. In the role of saleslad ies I noted Mrs. Percy D. Haughton (Gwendolen Whistler Howell), wife of the famous football coach, as well as stately Mrs. John Lavalle, whose sister, Mrs. Curtis Guild, was also to be of the saleslady group.

Mrs. B. Devereux Barker headed the notable committee in charge of the entire rummage sale, only one of the twenty odd sales being held in and about Boston this week in aid of the Army and Navy Club under the chairmanship of Mrs. Harry Liebmann and Mrs. Fearing.

MRS. HORATIO NELSON SLATER has returned to New York from a fortnight's visit in San Domingo, where she was with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. B. Sumner Welles.

Though Mrs. Slater pays frequent visits to the Slater estate in Readville, for the past two Winter she has been making her headquarters in Gotham.

Cairo—Newspaper announced today that the military governorship of Egypt, established by the British would be abolished at once.

Buenos Aires—A Rivera dispatch to La Nacion says the state forces in Rio Grande Do Sul have taken the city of Alegrete which was abandoned by the revolutionaries after a short fight.

Kingston, Jamaica—Fruit trade with the United States is severely hampered by the strike of railway men. The fruit companies are using automobiles to haul bananas to the docks.

Paris—The French undertakers' Union has called a general strike to support a demand for five francs more a day. Paris is not affected, as undertaking here is a municipal monopoly.

PRIESTS HOLD SECRET MASS IN PETROGRAD

Petrograd, April 19. (By the Associated Press.)—Petrograd's Roman Catholic churches are still closed, but hundreds of parishioners daily crowd the small apartments of the priests to pray and to hear mass, much as did the first Christians in the catacombs of old Rome.

St. Catherine's Church, of which the late Mgr. Butchavitch was cure, looks out across the broad Nevsky Prospekt. Its bell silent and its doors locked, while the faithful, young and old, sneak through the courtyard to the parish house. They kneel in the doorways and corridors and cross themselves before the cheap crucifixes which the priests have hung inside the walls of the edifice.

From the size of the crowd that passed through the courtyard of St. Catherine's last Sunday, one might have thought that the church was open. Father Casimir, who has been left in charge of parish affairs, said that he and one other priest were busy from daybreak until noon saying one mass after another. He estimated that 6,000 persons were in the long lines. There are only 15,000 Roman Catholics in Petrograd.

Some of those who could not be accommodated at St. Catherine's sought out the rooms of other seven priests left in Petrograd, several of whom are living in cold, barren chambers at the top of flights of rickety stairs in houses adjoining the closed church. The majority of these priests are without funds to buy fuel and are obliged to say mass with heavy fur coats over their vestments.

N. Y. C. TRAFFIC BEATS ALL PREVIOUS MARKS

New York, April 19.—The New York Central Railroad handled the greatest traffic in its history in March and during the first quarter of the year, President Smith announced today. In the first quarter of the year 2,416,098 cars were loaded or received, as compared with 1,903,302 cars for last year. The March figures were 856,652 cars loaded or received from connections, against 720,013 cars in March, 1922.

GIRL REPORTED SLAIN BY KLAN

Hammonton, N. J., April 19.—State troopers and Hammonton police today searched Folsom swamp for the body of a girl reported murdered.

The search was begun as a result of a letter signed "K.K.K." postmarked at Trenton and delivered to Prosecutor William H. Geraghty.

"There is a young woman, twenty-six, dressed in expensive clothing, lying in the marshes near Hammonton, N. J., and shot to death by me," the letter said.

The swamp is the same in which the body of three-year-old Billy Dansey lay for forty-four days after he had disappeared from home in October, 1919.

W. D. Grange Dead

Philadelphia, April 19.—William D. Grange, 47, socially prominent and former president of the Philadelphia Stock Exchange, died here today. Death was due to heart attack.

Food Query Editor:

I saw in your paper that a lady from Bangor, Me., would like to know where she could get red bone marrow. Now, as I am getting it, I would like to tell her where she could secure it. I do not know whether I am supposed to answer this question, but hope you will not mind. The only place I know of is Morgan's Drug Store, Pleasant street, Malden, Mass., at $1.65 a pint bottle, and it is a wonderful medicine. If she wrote them they may be able to send it to her parcel post. The name in the paper was signed "Mrs. M. Harley, Bangor, Me." You could let her know through your paper.

MRS. J. E. LIBBY.

I have noticed of late a new punch advertised on various bill board signs and also in your papers. I am very anxious to try this particular punch, first of all for the drink itself and also I was greatly attracted by the little glass jug that it came in. I have inquired at several places, but as it is a new article, I have not struck the right store yet. Could you help me out as to where I could buy same?

MRS. M. D. McDONALD.

On account of the large demand for Za-Rex we understand from the manufacturers that they are having trouble in stocking all the retail stores, but hope to catch up with their orders very shortly. You, however, can secure this product at the present time at any of the E. E. Gray stores and Wilder Drug Company, corner Commonwealth and Harvard avenues.

Food Query Editor:

I wish you would let me know in your interesting columns where pig meal can be obtained, as I have inquired in all of the drug stores here and no one can tell me what it is or where I can get it. It is from the blood and I would like to get it if possible.

MRS. J. J. McCARTHY.

74 James St., Greenfield, Mass.

We have been unable to find anybody in either the drug, grocery or meat trade who have ever heard of pig meal. We would appreciate it if you will give us a little information about same. In the meantime we will continue to try and get some line on this particular commodity.

Food Query Editor:

Have heard of late several people talking about a wonderful coffee, the name of which is Indian Princess and it comes put up in paper bags. I understand that it costs about 40c a pound. I have not been able to locate a store around this neighborhood where I could purchase same. Will you please tell me if you know of this brand and where I can get it? MRS. JAS. LEWIS.

You can buy the Novaced brand codfish, put up in one pound net weight wooden boxes, in any of the Arthur E. Dorr stores. We understand these people handle practically the entire output of this brand of codfish in this territory.

Food Query Editor:

We are from Chicago and have always used a brand of luncheon tongue known as the "Finest." We have not been able to find this particular brand as yet in Boston. Could you help me out through your valuable column?

MRS. HECTOR LABLANCHE.

Milton, Mass.

Silas Pierce & Co., Ltd., 59 Commercial St., Boston, Wholesale Grocers, are the distributors of the "Finest Brand" of canned meat. If your market man or grocer cannot supply you, he can secure same from the abovementioned concern.

ARMED SHIPS BRING BRITISH RUM TO U. S.

By International News Service.

London, April 19.—Heavily armed Armadas of rum-runners are sailing frequently from British ports, carrying whiskey to the United States in defiance of American law, it was charged today by Emanuel Shinwell, member of Parliament from Lithgow, Scotland, in an interview with the International News Service.

He conferred on the subject with Under Foreign Secretary Ronald MacNeill, who recently announced Great Britain contemplates intervention to assist the United States in ending rum smuggling from British to American territory.

"The Foreign Office has promised a searching inquiry," continued Shinwell. "It is likely I shall demand a parliamentary investigation. Ships flying the British flag are armed and the masters sign crews to smuggle rum into the United States. It is understood by the seamen when they join such a ship that the understaking is hazardous and full of adventure. When a voyage is successful the men are given a bonus."

Shinwell declared that most of the traffic was direct from the Glasgow distilleries. He added:

"I have actually seen these disguised schooners leaving the Clyde. Members of the crews admitted to me they had revolvers and other arms issued to them in the event American revenue cutters tried to interfere.

"I am now endeavoring to obtain written documents from men who have been involved. A majority of them are now at sea, and it will be some little time before I will be able to complete my own inquiry. As soon as I have finished I will divulge the complete results to Commons."

enlighten them, from another angle, on various labor problems.

"NO BIG salaries for anybody," the engineers say. That sounds well. But the engineers will discover that the cheapest thing that they can get is the right man with the biggest salary, and the most costly thing is the wrong man, with the small salary. The diamond that cuts your glass is cheaper, even by weight than any other substance. The man that cuts through your problems is cheap—whatever his price. Union wages were invented do protect muscle, not to limit brains, and that the unions will know, after they have played capital's game for a while.

PRESIDENT HARDING has selected six cities for his speaking tohr. Big crowds will hear him gladly. But in addition to speaking in six places, the President, a first-class writer, ought to write regularly, for the newspaper. Repetition is reputation, and this next campaign will be one of repetition.

Henry Ford has fifteen thousand agents, all made rich by him, and all subject to his "recall." They will be talking in 16,000 places, from now on, to people they know well, and talking steadily, and that's repetition for you.

A CURIOUS thing about "a great national election" is this: We talk, argue and talk, and at last vote. Somebody is elected, and no matter who it is, things go along about as usual, and all the excitement dies out until the next election.

Once elected, every victorious candidate is taken for granted. A nation like this is a huge machine, pushed along by its inward forces, and it matters little who is chosen to wear the epaulets.

$11,000,000 FIRM LETS GIRL BE BOSS FOR DAY

By BERT FORD.

Portland, Me., April 19.—Miss Margaret F. Foster, twenty-year-old stenographer of this city, is not the least bit puffed up over being named president of the St. Louis Coke and Iron Company, a $11,700,000 corporation, said to be one of the largest ever incorporated in Maine.

The fact doesn't hold a thrill for Margaret.

Being president of the company doesn't flatten her pay envelope by so much as a single dollar or add one iota to her prestige in the world of finance.

Miss Foster, in her two years of employment as stenographer for the corporation trust company, No. 283 St. John street, has been named president of so many corporations that it has become an old story. She has been president of automobile, power, industrial, financial and sundry other corporations, too numerous to mention.

"And that's why all this fuss about the St. Louis Coke & Iron Company amuses me," she remarked today at her home, No. 130 Brown street, South Portland.

"It is true that I am named as president and Miss Alice B. Farnham, of Portland, is named as clerk, but that is merely the routine form of incorporation. We generally remain in office only a few hours while a permanent board of officers are being elected."

Miss Farnham, manager of the Portland branch of the Corporation Trust Company, with headquarters at No. 37 Wall street, New York, said:

"This was all mere business routine. Miss Foster's name as president and mine as clerk were recorded purely for purposes of incorporation. There is nothing unusual about that.

"Miss Foster is not now president, as a permanent president has already been named."

CHARGE $6,000,000 IN ASSETS VANISH

New York, April 19.—On complaint of attorneys for 4,000 creditors that $6,000,000 in gilt-edged assets had disappeared, Harold P. Coffin, referee in bankruptcy, today ordered the books of E. M. Fuller & Company, defunct stock brokers, turned over to the trustees in bankruptcy. E. M. Fuller is now being tried in Federal Court, for the third time, on charges that he bucketed stock orders.

BANDITS ROB TRUCK OF $100,000 CASH

Kansas City, April 19.—Amid a rain of bullets, bandits today held up a truck of the American Railway Express and escaped with a safe containing approximately $100,000 in gold and bills. The bandits, in two cars, drove alongside the truck and leaped aboard with drawn pistols, firing into the car.

tuvels are established which are wholly speculative and artificial.

DRASTIC MOVE.

The proceedings are the most sweeping ever instituted by the Federal government in its efforts to curb speculation in the necessities of life. The injunction petition was decided on after the whole subject including evidence gathered in New York and elsewhere by Department of Justice agents had been discussed in detail by President Harding and his Cabinet, and after Attorney-General Daugherty, who is ill at Asheville, N. C., had revised and approved the bill of complaint.

Although the action today was a civil suit, Assistant Attorney-General Seymour announced that the government also was considering criminal proceedings under the Sherman law and was pursuing an investigation along that line.

Officials here would not discuss in detail the possibility of criminal action against those held responsible for the present price levels, but it was said that close contact will be maintained with the court proceedings in New York and every effort made to protect the interests of the public.

SEIZE BOAT IN RAID ON BOOTLEG FLEET

Highlands, N. J., April 19.—Prohibition enforcement agents today captured the skiff Jennie W., with forty cases of liquor, as she was returning from rum row.

FREE STATE TO DEMAND FULL SURRENDER

By DANIEL O'CONNELL.
International News Service.

Dublin, April 19.—Monsignor Luzio, who was sent to Ireland by Pope Pius to confer with the Catholics on the possibility of a peace settlement, is not regarded by the Free State as a possible mediator between the Dublin government and the Republicans, the Freeman's Journal announced today in a statement that has the appearance of being semi-official.

This statement reiterates the declaration that the only peace terms the Free State government will accept is unconditional surrender by the Republicans.

The round-up of Republicans by Free State troops continues, especially on the western coast and in the South. Many prisoners have been taken within the past twenty-four hours, including women.

No further news has been received of De Valera.

MUMMIES ARE FOUND IN LATIN AMERICA

By International News Service.

London, April 19.—The art of embalming human bodies into mummies for permanent preservation, which was supposed to have been lost with the Egyptians, still exists in the interior of Central America, according to a statement made here today by F. A. Mitchell Hedges British explorer, who has returned from a two years journey of exploration along the Caribbean Sea.

Hedges has informed scientists that he discovered a new race of people in the interior of Panama. Mummified remains indicate that America was first settled by the Chinese, according to the explorer. They are supposed to have entered by way of Siberia and Alaska, working their way south until they covered all the western part of the continent. Hedges penetrated far into the hinterland of Panama among the San Blas Indians, where no white men had ever gone before.

ONLY APPEARANCES IN BOSTON

Rudolph Valentino

AND HIS WIFE

WINIFRED HUDNUT VALENTINO

*Will appear in person with the noted Argentine Orchestra, dancing the famous "Four Horsemen" tango, and other numbers.

There will be a public DANCE CONTEST, the winners of which will be presented with a Valentino loving cup.

*The Valentino MINERALAVA BEAUTY CONTEST, open to every girl in New England who goes to the Boston Arena Thursday night, will give the winner a free trip to New York to participate in the national contest to pick Rudolph Valentino's next leading lady. There will be a local prize of two beautiful French beauty dolls—replicas of Mr. and Mrs. Valentino in their Argentine costumes. Details in today's Advertiser.

In this day and age no man is ashamed to borrow a suggestion from a woman. Mr. Valentino noticed his wife's purity of complexion and learned she made a daily habit of using MINERALAVA BEAUTY CLAY.

"To my astonishment I discovered upon applying myself a few applications of MINERALAVA," said Mr. Valentino, "that it became ever so quickly a necessity that I cannot do without.

"An athlete keeps in trim by daily exercise in a gymnasium. This adds to his self-respect, even if he is not in active training for a contest. It is the same way with folks in every-day life. People should have enough self-respect for their personal appearance to give a few minutes each day to the use of MINERALAVA, the one perfect nature remedy for the skin-strain of our modern existence."

*"After the prettiest girls in the different cities have been selected," says Mr. Valentino, "one of whom will be chosen to be the leading lady of my next greatest picture, I am going to insist that they keep their skin perfection by the constant use of MINERALAVA. By doing this they will be following the example of Julia Sanderson, Marjorie Rambeau, Irene Bordoni, Billie Burke, Marion Davies, Nazimova, Leonore Ulric, and others. MINERALAVA BEAUTY CLAY is a skin necessity no man or woman can afford to do without to keep or attain complexion perfection."

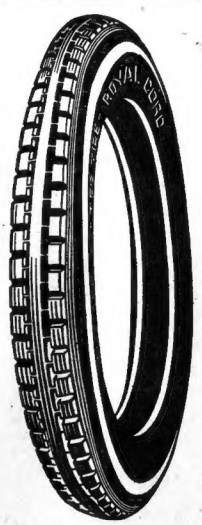
Point Blank: will you try Royal Cords this year?



WHETHER it's the tire business or some other business—wherever there's lost motion someone has to foot the bill.

Nothing pays more than being simple and keeping simple.

Give people the best money's-worth—and forget pretensions.

This works. So much so that there is confident expectation of a million new users of U. S. Royal Cords in 1923.

New car-owners, who have never bought tires before.

And the very sophisticated ones, too, who know all the ins and outs of the "tire market."

The makers of U. S. Royal Cords are in possession of lots of facts which compare their tire with tires in general.

But the Royal Cord policy is against campaigning exceptional mileages—even though U. S. Tires do deliver them.

The makers of Royal Cords do not sell by "big discounts" and other unsound practices, either.

Royal Cords reach out for new friends on this basis alone.

They simply ask you to try Royal Cords this year.

One million new users will say this year: "Royal Cords!"

The parade was impressive as an example of victories accomplished and an earnest of strength and patriotism ready standing for future call.

Decorations on buildings along the route bespoke public and private recognition of the war heroes and heroines. Flags and bunting fluttered bravely in the Spring time breeze while cheer on cheer rose.

As the parade passed through the crowded lanes of spectators there were special cheers for the more familiar faces in the [illegible] and particularly for Major-General Edwards.

Thousands of children were among the spectators. Carefully shepherded by their elders the children learned again the lessons of Patriots' Day and why—on this, the 148th anniversary—the men and women marched in the uniforms that they once wore in the grim days of battle.

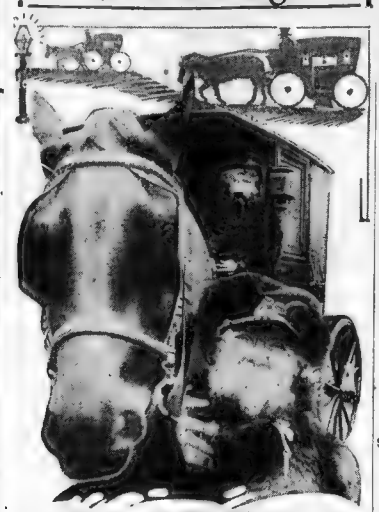
STORIES OF BOSTON TOWN
By Jo Swerling



TODAY IS THE ONE HUNDOTH ANNIVERSARY OF THE BIRTH of the cabriolet, vulgarly known the growler. Barney Smith is one of the few remaining cabbies inston and the only one who pilots a growler. He has only one custer, but is waiting for the taxi fad to pass away so he can come back in his own.

THE LAST OF THE GROWLERS

Every day at noon Barn Smith drives his old cab to the office of Rudolph Weld of thitate street firm of S. M. Weld & Co., cotton brokers.

Mr. Weld enters the anent equipage.

"The club, Barney," heays. "Grauogh!" says Barney to Dick, his horse. A heavy gh from the senile steed, and the daily journey to the City Clu starts. This has been going on for so long that I'm afraid tprint the day it began.

Barney Smith has been aving a cab ever since the Civil War. I won't say it's the sae cab he drives today. Barney is sensitive about that cab. hit there was a time when some 1500 cabs were dashing about Boston streets. Growlers they called them, why nobody seems to know. Today Barney's growler is the only one left. There are still one or two hansoms making their wistful wa about the crowded streets, but Barney has the only growler oing service in these parts.

It is peculiarly appropriate to de vote this space today to Barney th Cabbie. Nobody is making any fa fare of trumpets about it, but toda is the one hundredth anniversary o the cabriolet, or growler. The firs of the species, a hooded chaise on two wheels, was invented by an Englishman, David Davies, in 1820 but a license was not obtained unti April 19th, 1823, so today is the cen tenary ann.ersary of the cab

Early Cabriolet Called "Coffin-Cab"

In the early types the driver was seated at the side, not in front, or above his passengers, who sat in a hooded vehicle The hood resembled a coffin standing on end, and earned for the vehicle the nicknama "Coffin-Cab" The fore part of the hood could be lowered as required, and there was a curtain which could be drawn across to shield the rider from wind or rain

From th cab out the public turned to the "Patent Safety Cab." Invented by Joseph Hansom, another Englishman This vehicle, patented in 1834, had a square body, wheels over seven feet high tas high as the cab itself), and a seat at the side for the driver.

Last October Barney the Cabbie celebrated his eightieth birthday. Only his solitary patron, Mr. Weld, remembered the event with a hand some donation

"There was a time," says Barney, "when I had so many regular customers that I hardly ever had time to breathe. I'll never forget the first time I saw an auto coming down the street. I laughed for an hour. It struck me as the best joke I ever came across. Now the laugh is on me

Laughs First Time He Sees Auto

"Sometimes I stand here at State street and Merchants row (where I've had my stand for ove fifty years) for days without getting a single hail. The few fares I pick up ride in my cab for curiosity. I've only one regular customer left— Mr. Weld. He's been riding with me ever since he was a boy, and his father, General Brenhen M Weld, was one of my customers before him. Here, hop on and I'll give you a ride"

The ride was anything but thrilling. Barney chatted as we went along State street

"These taxicabs are the bane of my life. I could still manage to be happy if it wasn't for them. They bounce in and out of traffic like rats, squawking their damned horns, scraping fenders, running around as if they owned the town. I had a chance to get into the taxi business years ago, but I held out, thinking it was just a fad that would pass in a few years.

Now Ask for Ban on Taxicabs

"Maybe I was a fool for not taking the opportunity. But I had been driving a cab so long that I had gotten sort of attached to it. I've driven some of the best people in Boston in this old cab, and you can never tell. Maybe traffic'll get so bad they'll bar taxicabs, and then'll be my chance. That's why I'm holding on. And besides that, I still have one customer left, and what kind of a man would I be to desert him after fifty years?"

The cab drew up to the curb of the building on State street. A taxi driver let loose a string of profanity as the old man guides his horse to the curb. Barney saw his billingsgate and then taught him a few phrases of his own.

An elderly man came out of the building.

"The club, Barney," he said "Grauogh!" said Barney to Dick. The last of the growlers started on its daily pilgrimage to the City Club

Lady Astor's Son Near Death in England

'BOB' SHAW INJURED BY FALL

Son of Boston Man Who Married Noted Scion Thrown From Mount in Race

London, April 19.— E. T. (Bobby) Shaw, son of Lady Astor and Robert Gould Shaw of Boston, was seriously injured in a steeplechase when thrown from his mount.

Physicians attending him report that his condition is grave and he may not recover. Lady Astor, who has been in constant attendance at the sessions of the House of Commons, has hurried to her son's bedside and is nursing him.

E. T. Shaw.

Bobby Shaw is Lady Astor's only child by her disastrous marriage to the scion of the Boston Shaws, from whom she was divorced in 1903, six years after their marriage. She has four sons by her marriage to Viscount Astor.

A few years ago there was some talk of obtaining a British peerage for the Boston boy, but the project fell through.

Viscount Astor thought so little of his own title that he tried to resign it to retain his seat in the House of Commons, now occupied by his wife.

He sought to pass the title along to his stepson, but the British courts declared it could not be done

Mayor Plants Five Trees in Honor of Noted Visitors

Mayor James M. Curley today planted five trees on Liberty Mall, Boston Common, leading from the head of Winter street to the Shaw memorial. The trees were named for five living men who have distinguished themselves in various ways, and who have all visited Boston within the past year.

They are, Channing Pollock, author and playwright; Georges Clemenceau, French statesman; Rear Admiral W. S. Benson, naval officer; George M. Cohan, actor and playwright, and Joseph T. Flaherty, Supreme Exalted Ruler of the Elks.

English elms and lindens were the trees planted.

To avoid killing a little girl who darted in front of a fruit truck he was driving on Centre street, Jamaica Plain, today, John J. Collins of No. 20 Dell street Somerville, rammed another truck which was parked at the curb in front of the Lowell School

Although Collins risked injury or death by his act he escaped unhurt. The little girl Dorothy Frenn of No. 61 Lamartine street was struck by flying debris and stunned by the shock. She was taken to the City Hospital John J. Grindy of No. 127 Carolina avenue who was seated in the parked truck was also somewhat hurt, but was treated on the spot by a physician and went home

Dorothy Frenn

The parked truck was engaged to transport the officials of the ten mile cross-country run which was about to start under the auspices of the Michael J. Connolly Post, No. 76, American Legion of Jamaica Plain, and the street was crowded with runners and spectators at the time of the collision

The crowd on the sidewalk scattered when it saw that a collision was imminent. When the crash came the big car carromed off of the parked truck when overturned on the sidewalk, where a score of persons had been standing a moment before.

LID PUT ON WET B. U. PROM

Students' Plans Leak and Dry Agent Will Watch at Hotel Somerset

Student lips that touch liquor are no longer smacking in anticipation of the Junior Prom of Boston University at the Hotel Somerset tomorrow night.

For their plans to make the affair assume a Bacchanalian tinge in complete disregard of the university regulations and the Volstead act have been betrayed. A skelton at the feast there will be in the person of a prohibition enforcement officer and the display of a flask will mean immediate arrest.

Furthermore, Frank C. Hall, manager of the hotel, has warned James M. Ahern, chairman of the junior prom committee, that unless assurances that the celebration will be absolutely dry are received he will be compelled to cancel the reservations.

LEADERS INTERVENE.

Since junior week began on Monday last the university has been rife with rumods that a real, old ante-prohibition prom would be staged. Whereupon Clarence E. Anderson, editor in chief of the B. U. News and acknowledged leader of the student body, and Arthur Bushell, president of the junior class, jealous of the reputation of their alma mater for sobriety and good morals conferred with Dean Everett W Lord of the College of Business Administration

Dean Lord promptly apprised the Hotel Somerset management of the situation,

Manager Hall then notified Student Chairman Flynn that he had been informed by the dean that there were rumors that liquor was being procured for the prom and called his attention to the violation of the Volstead act entailed. He stated that there would be a prohibition enforcement officer in the hotel as a consequence, and that the reservations would be cancelled unless the wet features planned were eliminated.

SKULLMEN WILL WATCH.

Similar rumors about the Pan Adelphic Mardi Gras last Monday at the Hotel Brunswick led to a warning to the management by the dean. The hotel, however, reports that the party was the best conducted of its kind in the hotel.

In addition to the prohibition enforcement officer, Skull Men, members of the college secret honorary society, will act as police at the prom, and objectionable students, so that word has been passed around will be "tossed out on their ear."

Dean Lord declared that his letter to the hotel was simply as a precaution. He did not expect trouble. Considering the large number of the students at the university, with its lack of dormitory supervision, he added, that it is surprising that there are so few instances of improper conduct.

ARMY HOLDS ALL FLIGHT RECORDS

By LIEUTENANT JOHN A. MacREADY.

McCook Field, April 19.—The army air service now holds all recognized aviation records for speed, altitude, duration and distance We cleaned the slate by officially taking from the French the duration and distance marks held by them.

Lieutenant Kelly and myself covered 2,516 miles in 36 hours and 5 minutes around a triangular course without landing. Had our course been straight and level, we would have covered considerable more distance in less time

But much efficiency was lost in turning and manoeuvering the tremendous weight of our aeroplane around the corners

Our record flight is just another high point which indicates the rapid progress being made in aviation and shows that the army air service, with very limited funds, is providing equipment that beats the world in the most modern means of transportation and defense.

SPURNED DANCER FIRES BULLET

While a dance in the Odd Fellows Hall Tremont street, South End, was at its height, a revolver shot rang out in the hall and threw the dancers into a panic

The figure of a man was then seen to dash for the door smoking revolver in hand Patrolmen from the East Dedham Street Police Station, on duty at the dance, chased the man but he escaped

After restoring order in the hall, the police questioned others in attendance and learned that the man who fired the shot did so while in a jealous rage when a girl acquaintance gave a dance which he said had been promised to him to another.

The police say they have learned the man's name The bullet entered a wall in the hall.

VALENTINO RAGES AT "SHEIK"

Calls Picture Piece of Cheese; Glad No Women Are on Hand to Greet Him

"Thank God, there are no women to greet me!"

Rodolph Valentino, popularly known as "The Sheik," the "He-Vamp," the "Great Lover," and a lot of other names, emitted a great sigh of relief as he peeped out of the window of his private car when it arrived in the Boston & Albany yards today.

Valentino is in Boston today to dance with his new wife at the Boston Arena.

Valentino had much in the way of complaint on his chest and proceeded to get some of it out of his system. In so doing he presented the other side of the now famous "Sheik."

"The man who produced the Sheik ought to be banished to the wilderness," he said. "They called it a piece of art. I call it a piece of cheese. I have been trying to live down that miserable title ever since the picture was taken.

DOESN'T WANT IT.

"The producers were so anxious to make the picture a commercial success they pinned that terrible name on me. They called me a he-vamp, a great lover and a lot of sloppy names which have made red-blooded men dislike me without ever seeing me.

"I do not want to be known by such names. I want to be known as a regular he-man. I want to be first a man, then an artist. Not a sheik or a great lover. That does not appeal to me. It is not my makeup. I guess I shall never live down that title, though.

"I am glad there are no women here to greet me today. I hate this business of having thousands of women rushing to meet me, afraid of being pushed around like some animal on exhibition. That is not the stuff that appeals to me."

SCORES MATINEE IDOLS.

Rodolph purposely had kept information as to the time of his arrival secret so there would not be a crowd.

Jumping from the Sheik, Rodolph had a hot shot at so-called "matinee idols."

"By my way of thinking," he said, "calling a man a matinee idol is just a polite way of calling him a 'dumbbell.' You know, what I mean. You sometimes see a pretty girl with no brains. You point at her and say pretty but an awful dumbbell.'

"Well that is the way with the matinee idol. I never want to be classed as such A matinee idol is not an artist. He never forgets himself. He is himself in any part he plays. The artist becomes the character he is portraying"

KICKS AT PRODUCERS.

Rodolph was not through with his complaints. He has a big kick regarding the production of pictures. He says there are too many plumbers and such like who are behind the producers. He says they spoil the art

"What does a civil engineer or a prize fight promoter know about art?" he exclaimed.

That is just what is the matter with so many pictures today. There are too many plumbers, engineers and prize fight promoters trying to tell the directors what to do. Those men take the art out of the moving picture production

"I have seen it many times. I know of one instance where a civil engineer killed out some of the most wonderful scenes in a production after they had been filmed. He was behind the picture, though, and his word was law. That will ruin pictures."

FED UP ON STARS.

"There are some great pictures being made, however. One of the greatest, to my way of thinking, is 'When Knighthood Was In Flower,' produced by the Cosmopolitan productions. That is a real picture. That is art. Another is "Robin Hood." That is real art. Those are pictures.

GIANTS RALLY IN THE 9TH AND WIN OPENING GAME, 4 TO 3

BRAVES BLOW UP WITH VICTORY IN SIGHT

By NICK FLATLEY.

The Giants rallied in the ninth, on the holiday morning, after the Braves had gone ahead in the eighth, and the Americans won their third straight game; the score was 4 to 3. It was a ding dong battle all the way.

Neither Larry Benton nor Art Nehf, who started, lasted till the finish. Benton pitched four ball for eight innings and was removed for a pinch hitter during the Braves' rally. Greenwich and Cooney were assaulted in the ninth for the two runs that gave the enemy the victory.

The Giants bunched three hits in the eighth and scored twice. The Braves couldn't do a thing with Nehf until the eighth. In that round an error by Bancroft let pinch hitter Niton reach first. He was forced by O'Neil. Gowdy batting for Benton was passed. Powell singled to center, sending O'Neil. Southworth forced Powell, but Henkel and Mc Inn's forced each other, putting the Braves ahead.

The Giants hit safely in the ninth and added a run. Bancroft got a scratch single won the ball game.

ABANDON BRITISH SHIP IN MID-OCEAN

Halifax N. S., April 20—The British barkentine Clutha has been abandoned in a sinking condition and set on fire 1,000 miles east of New York, according to a radiogram from the royal mail steam packet Orduna.

The Orduna is bound from New York to Hamburg and has taken off the crew of the sinking vessel.

The Clutha was last reported at St. Johns, N. F., and her intended destination is not known here.

CHARLEY HARVEY IS SLIGHTLY IMPROVED

Chicago, April 20—Charles Harvey of New York, long active in professional boxing and who suffered a fractured skull in an automobile accident here, still was in a dangerous condition today, hospital attendants said. Harvey "had a fair night," having regained consciousness and his chances for recovery seemed better.

E. Eagan Captures One Ring Title; Loses Second

London, April 19, (By International News Service).—Eddie Eagan today won the amateur heavyweight championship of Great Britain. He was defeated, however, by H. J. Mitchell when he tried to capture the light - heavyweight champion ship.

SHORD FIRST IN O'CONNELL POST RACE

John Shord, unattached, flashed first in the ten-mile run of the Michael J. O'Connell Post, which was staged in Jamaica Plain on the holiday.

His elapsed time was 54 minutes, 55 seconds.

The three prize was won by Robert Talcott of the Dorchester Club. He finished with his actual time was 50 minutes, 36 seconds. He was the scratch man of a big field.

Second place went to Eric Sten of the Hurja A. C. His time was 55 minutes, 2 seconds. His actual time was 53 minutes, 19 seconds.

Third place went to A. W. Dewhurst of the Y. M. C. A. Fred Brown of the Dorchester Club was fourth and James Farrell of the Penguins A. C. fifth.

A large crowd lined the course and were furnished with plenty of real sport.

Members of the Michael J. O'Connell Post were in charge of affairs and conducted everything in a very orderly and expert manner.

Concord Has Two Tourneys

Two golf tournaments will mark the opening of the season on the links of the Concord Country Club, of the old road to Nine Acre Corner, today.

This morning there was a best selected nine holes event, one-half handicap and in the afternoon mixed foursomes, selected drive, eighteen holes, medal play, will be staged.

HAMBONE SIGNS FOR BOUT AT ARENA A. C.

The Mighty Hambone, otherwise known as Joseph Kelly of South Boston, will be on the Arena A. C.'s card at the opening of the boxing season at the Boston Arena next Monday night. This celebrated puncher is billed to clash with Frank Powers of New York, formerly known as Bill Clancey, in the semi-final of eight rounds.

Hambone Kelly

Hambone has been training for a month, and is fit to step forth with the fastest of company. All he asks is an opportunity to jolt his hambones against Clancey's jaw.

There is something colorful about Kelly's battling qualities, and as a result a large delegation of South Boston fans will journey to the ringside to see him in action.

Another eight-round mill will bring together Joe Simms of Jersey York, who kayoed Mike Paulson at the Arena, and Jack Thomas, Canadian champion.

The third eight session affair will be between Wimpy Avery of Hyde Park and Nedjo Flannigan of Malden. Apparently Manager Lou Goodwin is out to break his own record for putting on bang up preliminary cards.

Cowboy Padgett of Kansas City, who clashes with Dave Shade in the feature bout of ten rounds, was expected to arrive in town today. He has been doing his training in the Middle West, and looks forward to scoring a victory. When he last battled Shade, honors were even.

Arlmont Club Opens

The Arlmont Golf Club of Arlington Heights will open its season today at the club links with an all-day handicap medal play eighteen holes.

Dilboy Post Has Strong Twilight League Team

This season the Boston Twilight League will find Somerville represented by the George Dilboy Post, V. F. W., team. Ever since the rumor went around that St. Joseph's C. C. would not be represented the officials of the Dilboy Post worked untiringly to secure admission to the league.

A special committee of five headed by Jackie Halloran, Charlie Magno, Jack Dickerman, Jim Philbrook, treasurer, and Gove Driscoll as business manager, was appointed to handle the affairs of the nine.

This committee is assisted by Wallie Wright, who will manage the team and play second base. Chick Carrigan will captain the team and be the mainstay behind the bat.

In all probability the following players will be found in these positions when the opening gong sounds "Jocko" Halligan of B. C. fame, first base; Connie O'Doherty of Woburn and Exeter, holding down the hot corner; Al Shanahan of Watertown, at short; Harold Leland of Somerville High and star outfielder and batter of Tufts College, in right field.

In left field, Sid Hines, the old Ridge athlete, will cavort, and he also will give added strength to the team with his all-around fielding and batting; in centre, Frankie Sweeney of the old Bonnetts, Somerville B. B.'s and Lincolns will be found.

Sweeney is a fighting ball player, in the game at all times, is a good fielder and an excellent batter.

For pitchers, the committee feels it has made a ten strike in securing young Emmie Rideout, who pitched for Houlton, Me., last season with Jerry Murphy, the Harvard catcher on the receiving end.

STACIAH AND GOBAR IN MAT BATTLE

By JACK CONWAY.

Holiday wrestling tonight at the Grand Opera House under the direction of the Old Howard management.

Stanley Stasiak, great Polish wrestler, and Prince Baba Gobe of India in the feature bout to a finish.

Frank Judson, Harvard instructor, against John Rogniaski in another finish tussle.

John Kilonis and Lee Hayatt in the preliminary.

That program should satisfy.

Everybody wants to see Stasiak beaten. That's a peculiar state of affairs, as the Pole is a fine young man personally and a great wrestler.

Stasiak's unpopularity is due to his great size. He has usually had all the physical advantages on his side. This has caused the fans to root for his defeat.

The Polish giant will meet a man even bigger than himself tonight. This should be pleasant news for those who have been putting Stasiak on the trying pan as it were.

Gobar weighs 318 pounds and is taller than his rival. He believes that his physical advantages backed up by rare grappling skill, will enable him to surge to victory.

Gobar comes of royal blood. In India he numbers his friends among the nobility. Since coming to this country, Gobar has been very successful in wrestling contests. He feels confident he will continue his victory surge this p. m.

The fans are greatly interested in the tussle between Judson and Rogniaski. Judson is one of the most promising grapplers in the East, but he will have to show exceptional form to win over Rogniaski. The latter is one of the few men who have been able to make things interesting for Stasiak.

Kilonis and Hayatt should do well.

Our advertisers are Stasiak, Judson and Kilonis. A deposed man doesn't get a rest on a holiday. Which proves that Marathon runners are not the only men who have their troubles.

Scotland Wins Over England at Soccer

By ART CURLY.

Scotland handed England a 4—1 defeat at Sullivan square today in the annual International soccer match, and is now the local international champion team for another year.

The winners were favored with a slight lead in the first half and piled up all four of their goals in this period. Tommy Underwood was the first to register a goal, then "Sober" Wilson, Bob Smith and Mc Dermott all found the net in the order named.

England's only tally came via the penalty route about twenty minutes from the start of the second half. "Pimp" Doherty knocked the ball down with his hand in his dying moments. Salisbury took the free try and counted.

Haworth and Sid Sanson moved up into the forward in order to force additional tallies, but although they came close several times the final whistle sounded before they could connect.

The lineup

Scotland—Masters, goal; Strachan and Hall, backs; Forbes, Mc Farlane and Doherty, halfbacks; Underwood, Mc Dermott, J. Smith, Reid and Wilson, forwards.

England—Wall, goal; Sharp and Hargreaves, backs; Tait, Kirkwood and Barnes, halfbacks; Haworth, Sanson, Kilpatrick, Hall and Hunter, forwards.

CONDUCTOR LEAVES $170,000 FORTUNE

George F. Kennard, a retired passenger conductor of the Boston & Maine Railroad, who died a month ago, left an estate valued at $170,000. The will was probated at Biddeford, Maine.

The only bequest made outside of the family was to Miss Myrtle Ham of South Berwick, Maine, a close friend of Kennard's widow. Miss Ham will forfeit the $10,000 that is left to her if she does not stay single.

DE MAR, RECORD HOLDER, WINS HIS THIRD MARATHON RACE

FRANK ZUNA IS SECOND AND CARLSON IS THIRD

2n 2 hours, 38 minutes, 23 seconds.

Arthur L. Flanders of the B. A. A. was tenth with a time of 2 hours, 40 minutes, 41 seconds.

Edouard Fabre of the Richmond A. C., Montreal, winner in 1915, was eleventh. He finished in 2 hours, 41 minutes, 9 1-5 seconds.

HARDEST RACE,' SAYS DE MAR.

When the thirty-five-year-old World War veteran came sprinting down the home stretch, more like a 100-yard runner than a man just finishing twenty-five miles, the thousands grouped at the finish went literally wild.

Most enthusiastic of all in their greetings were the members of Melrose Post, No. 99, American Legion. Every member able to appear was present. So were most all the wives and sweethearts, who showered kisses and congratulations on the winner.

De Mar drew away from the throng with difficulty and pressed through to the clubhouse. As he did he gave a statement to The Boston American. He said: "It was my hardest race."

Right at the start the race narrowed down to the two who finished in the first dozen with the fight for the lead alternating between De Mar and Michelsen.

Middle after mile passed with first one forging ahead and then the other. When they came to Lake street, Newton, De Mar did the same trick he did last year. He began lengthening his stride. Michelsen failed to keep the killing pace. He faltered.

When De Mar turned Coolidge Corner it was plain to spectators that he would never be headed. He was two minutes ahead of Michelsen who had slowed his pace to little more than a walk. Zuna was not in sight.

Apparently the knowledge he had outstripped his competitors so far gave speed to the "wonder man" for he went faster and faster and, as he tore down Beacon street, the cheering thousands lining the curbs gave him cheer after cheer.

Zuna, Carlson and Michelsen staged a hard fight for second honors. The first two finished strong.

67 COMPETE IN GRIND.

Conditions for the race were good. The number of spectators was the greatest in the twenty-seven years.

Sixty-seven of the original seventy-eight entries were on the mark when the start of the race began.

The crowds that thronged the course from the start at Ashland to the finish line before the Boston Athletic Association club house, were reported by course inspectors as the largest ever.

State constabulary patrolling the course kept it clearer than ever before in the history of the races, club officials told the Boston American.

Joseph Conte of the Pastime A. C. of New York swung into the lead at the start and was leading Thomas Henigan of Malden at the first turning post, Ashland square, one and two-tenths miles.

Frank Zuna, winner of the 1921 event, was third, and Clarence De Mar, twice winner, was in fourth place.

Henigan stole the lead just before reaching Framingham square, about four miles along. Albert R. Michelson of Cygnet A. C., Stamford, Ct., was second, with Wallie Carlson of Chicago third. De Mar and Arthur Flanders of New York were close behind. About twenty yards separated the first and sixth runner. The time was 12.32 12 5-5. This was behind the record for that mark.

DeMAR TAKES LEAD.

De Mar flashed into the lead just before reaching Wellesley Square at 1:01.35, less than one minute behind his mark of last year when he broke the world's record.

He was less than two feet ahead of Michelsen and only two yards ahead of Henigan. A few feet behind were Carlson and Flanders. Gunnar Nilson of New York was next.

De Mar, suffering from a cold, was loudly cheered by Wellesley College students who lined the road. Tom Henigan also drew the plaudits of the girls.

MICHELSON TAKES LEAD.

Michelson took the lead entering Newton. He was less than twenty feet ahead of De Mar. Carlson was third. The time was one hour and twenty-five minutes. Four seconds separated the leader and Carlson.

Frank Zuna was plodding in fourth position. He appeared strong. Gunnar Nilson was fifth and Arthur Flanders sixth. The next four in order were Jimmy Henigan of Dorchester, August Fager of New York, Nestoy Erickson of New York and John Rost of Portchester, N. Y.

De Mar was leading by more than 2 minutes at Coolidge Corner, Brookline. His time was 2:07:46.

The nearest competitor was Michelsen, who had slowed down to a walk and appeared to be losing his nerve.

MARATHON STARS IN HARD BATTLE

Anastas K. Sturgis of Dorchester (No. 53) is shown leading shortly after the start. Clarence De Mar (No. 56) is depicted a short distance in the rear.

De Mar's Own Story of Great Victory

By CLARENCE H. DeMAR

It was an awful hard day to run in fact, it was the hardest race I have ever run over the Marathon course.

The sun bothered me terribly, and the wind hurt my throat considerably. After a long run it was wonderful to see those boys greet me—a winner.

I would like to take longer to tell you fellows what a difficult day it was to run this course. Weather conditions today, in my opinion, were far different from that which I have had to contend with in the past.

Coming up to the Newtons I felt much stronger this year than in the past, although as I reached Coolidge Corner the sun commenced to bother me again.

DID NOT MIND HILLS.

The hills along the course I did not mind this year, especially those trying hills in Wellesley.

I felt confident after I passed Natick that I would be a winner despite the fact that this man Michelson was setting a terrific pace and was going strong. My training this year and my experience in the past has taught me that a man must be in first class physical condition to stand this terrific strain.

CONFIDENT OF VICTORY.

I believe I was in better condition this year than ever before. I was confident from the start that I could outrun the field for the reason that I was in finest physical shape.

It sure gives me a wonderful feeling to know that I have down what has never been done before—win three times!

De Mar, Thrice Winner at Age of 35 Years

Clarence DeMar, now thirty-five years, first won the B. A. A. Marathon in 1911, when he was supposed to be in his athletic prime.

Then he gave up running but resumed it again. He had shown up so poorly after his 1911 Marathon victory that he was believed to be "all done" as a Marathoner.

But in 1917 he surprised athletic followers by capturing the Brockton Fair Marathon.

In 1921 he returned as a competitor in the B. A. A. Marathon, but failed even to complete the course.

BEAT RECORD.

But he came back. He crashed into fame again last year by not only winning the B. A. A. classic for the second time, but also by breaking all records. The new mark he set for the twenty-five-mile course was 2 hours 18 minutes 10 seconds.

After he made this smashing record last year he said:

"I guess that the saying of a man being only as old as he feels is pretty true at that. I will be thirty-four on my next birthday and some of my friends told me I did not have a chance to win.

"I'm feeling fine. I lost but a couple of pounds and, to tell the truth, I plan to enter again next year, for I generally get bitten by the Marathon Bug along in the Winter."

BITTEN AGAIN.

The prophecy of last year's winner came true. He was bitten by the "Marathon Bug" again and today's result showed that a bite it was.

DeMar is American born. He first saw the light of day in the little town of Madeira, Ohio. His parents moved eastward to Melrose in 1893.

De Mar entered the public schools and later attended Maple Lawn Academy at South Hero, Vt. Then he took a course in agriculture at the University of Vermont for two years.

While at the university he became interested in running, but only to slight degree. He contested in two four-mile cross-country runs, but finished fourth in each event.

His first big race came February 22, 1910, when he won the ten-mile cross-country of the Armory A. A.

Then he ran in the annual ten-mile race of the Cathedral Y. M. C. A. in April of the same year. He had a fair handicap mark, but did not get a place.

A week later he entered the B. A. A. Marathon, his first attempt at the 25-mile distance. He surprised even his most fervent admirers by coming in second to Fred L. Cameron of Amherst, N. S., who won the 1910 race in 2 hours 28 minutes 52 2-5 seconds.

RESOLVES TO WIN.

The following Fall DeMar took part in the Brockton Marathon and finished third.

From that time he set his plans to enter and win the 1911 B. A. A. Marathon.

He did. He breasted the tape a winner with a time for the twenty-five miles of 2 hours, 21 minutes, 39 3-5 seconds.

De Mar, who is a compositor by occupation, leaped into high athletic fame.

He prepared for the 1912 Marathon by running from his place of work in Boston to his home in Melrose every week day night. He did this, not in running costume, but in his street clothes.

He kept that up through January of that year and into February. Then he increased. The race was run, he was ready, three weeks before the race, to go over the full Marathon distance of twenty five miles.

FUSSY ABOUT FOOD.

DeMar never uses tobacco in any form and is careful about what he eats. He never drinks tea or coffee or intoxicants.

He eats meat not more than once a day and sometimes not so often as that. He believes there are other foods more conducive than meat for muscle-building and speed.

It was thought that De Mar reached his athletic peak in winning the 1911 B. A. A. class. The following year, when victory ran for the Olympic team, he finished fifteenth. Sporting experts predicted his disappearance from the future running hall of fame.

RAN OVERSEAS.

In 1917 he took up the grind again and finished third at the B. A. A. tape. In October of that year he won the modified marathon at Brockton Fair.

In the world war, when he was overseas, he ran numerous long distance races in France and Germany. He finished fourth in both the A. E. F. and Inter-Allied championship runs.

But, when he returned from the war, he put his running pants away with his army uniform and did not take them out again until January of last year. Then he began training for the 1922 Marathon which he won in such spectacular manner.

JOHN HOLMES, Jr., No. 88 Paul Revere road, Arlington Heights.

An Englishman visited a ball game and both teams scored in the first inning. From then on until the seventh inning both sides were blanked inning after inning, and the Englishman departed in disgust and returned to his office. He was asked what the score was and said: "I cawn't say, for I left before the end of the match, but when I left it was up in the millions."

W. MASCOTTE, No. 319 Earl street Pittsfield, Mass.

My husband got a frenzy of building activity the other day and started to build a doghouse in our back yard for our two dogs—a fox terrier and a St. Bernard. He cut a small door for the terrier and a large one for the St. Bernard. He doesn't know yet why the neighbors razzed him.

The Boston American offers two seats to "Lightnin'", the clever play at the Hollis Street Theatre, to the writer of every lie printed in the department.

AARON KONOFSKY, No. 96 Ellington street, Dorchester 21, Mass.:

"I once knew a man who, without it ceasing him anything, had a way of letting his wife know he wasn't coming home to dinner. If the telephone bell rang at 6.30 p. m. his wife would not answer the phone and he thus advised her he wouldn't be home.

"One day, as many times before, the bell rang at 6.30 and wifey didn't answer it, thinking it was hubby. She was greatly mistaken, however, as hubby had been run over. At the hospital, where hubby was rushed, the surgeon had found on him an identification card giving his phone number. Since the husband and only a short time to live the surgeon had tried to summon the wife, but by not answering she never saw her husband alive again."

THOMAS J. CLEMENTS, No. 31 Emerson street, South Boston:

"Every year at this time there's a great noise about the Ashland to Boston marathon, and all the papers are full of what they call the terrible grind. The fact is they don't know what endurance is. When the Ninth Massachusetts was on the Mexican border they held an athletic meet every month, the final event of which was a marathon race. Entrants had to get five-day passes to enter this race, as it took that long to cover the course."

EDWARD J. HENSE, No. 316 Huntington avenue, Boston:

The good ship "Liquorice" well laden with that much desired luxury was cruising close to the three-mile limit when she sprang a leak, so serious that it was impossible to take care of it with the pumps.

The captain, being a very ingenious fellow, acted quickly and went below. Breaking open a case of his best, he emptied it into the bilge and ran straws therefrom up to his stateroom. He then called all hands and said: "Boys, I forgot all about it, but today is my birthday and the drinks are on me. These straws lead to a copious supply of excellent birthday punch, so drink heartily."

To make a long story short, these sons of Bacchus applied themselves very diligently and soon had the ship in safety. But alas, so enthusiastic were they in celebrating the anniversary of their dear captain's birth and so great was their ability to absorb moisture, that they went beyond this point and completely drained the surrounding waters in through the leak.

In sinking, the vessel became impaled on the milestone marking the three-mile limit on the ocean's bottom, whither the prohibition officials drove the next day in automobiles, capturing the cargo.

Where can a man buy a cap for his knee,
Or a key to the lock of his hair?
Can his eyes be called an academy

Can he use, when shingling the roof of his house
The nails on the end of his toes?

Harmony Sees Gilchrist Sales Champions Dine

MEMBERS OF FIRM GUESTS OF ASSOCIATION FOLLOWING COMPETITION

Presentation of a tablet representing the founding of the Gilchrist Company store was the feature of a banquet tendered the winning groups of the employes' sales week in the Gilchrist Association rooms No. 3 Winter street.

Members of the firm attended as guests of the association. Seated with them was Edward F. Putnam, president of the association.

Felix Vorenberg, vice-president of the company, addressing the gathering, declared the second annual employes' sale one of the greatest events in the history of the store. His praise was emphatic in his praise of the Gilchrist Association, which, he said, has established a fellowship between the management and the employes that will endure. The association is three years old.

Simon Vorenberg prophesied that the firm will double its business within the next five years. He based his prophesy on figures for the past few years, which have shown unprecedented growth and expansion.

To the house dress department he awarded a large inscribed silver shield, as a trophy for the greatest achievement during sales-week. The department increased its sales 17½ per cent. over the corresponding week last year. The banquet closed with short addresses from prominent employes.

Medbury Says---

By John P. Medbury

NOW that Spring is here, all the room-rent dodgers who have been sleeping in hotel lobbies during the Winter will go back to the parks and pick out their benches for the Summer.

LOTS of men like to sleep on a park bench because there are no shades to pull down or windows to open.

ONE guy kept going back to his bench all during the Winter. He thought there might be some mail there for him.

WHEN he did find some he tried to have the superintendent of the park fired for not forwarding his letters.

THE service in the public parks is as good as in some hotels. Every gardener is a bellboy and every cop is a night clerk.

ALL you've got to do is to tell the cop you want to get up at seven a. m. and there's no chance of your oversleeping unless you die during the night.

AT five-thirty he takes his club and starts rapping every room of on the suite.

THE roomers on the other benches can tell just how late you slept by the number of black and blue marks on your leg.

IT'S pretty nice of the city to furnish you an alarm clock with the brass buttons and a star.

THE birds are singing in the trees and any guy with a good imagination can imagine he's got canaries in his room.

ONE fellow used to sleep on a bench near the lake because he wanted to have goldfish in his parlor.

HE gets up off the bench in the morning and goes out and looks for a job—and if he's lucky he comes back without one.

BUT he isn't afraid of work. He'll stretch a newspaper out on the bench and go right to sleep on the "Help Wanted" column.

THE fellow next to him, however, was so high brow that he used to lie down on nothing but the financial page.

THESE room rent dodgers have their social obligations too. When a new roomer comes to the park, the old timers feel it their duty to ask him over to their benches to spend the evening.

THEY serve him a little supper, too, if he brought any food with him.

THEN around nine or ten o'clock he hits his hunk of bread and goes home to his own bench.

SLEEPING in the park used to be a tragedy but after you've slept in some of the hotels here in town, it has become a luxury.

ONCE OVERS

DON'T MAKE JUDGMENT DEPEND ON WEALTH AND POSITION

"Frequently I meet people who seem to be interested in me until I tell them the line of work in which I am engaged, and then they seem anxious to drop me, although it is honest, honorable and profitable labor. I am tired of trying to be somebody."

This sentence is taken from a letter of a Chicago young man.

His case is not unusual.

But it is a regrettable fact that the majority of persons pass judgment upon a man according to his wealth or his position.

In a so-called "genteel position," a man may earn only two-thirds as much as another in a more menial place and is thought more of—why?

Education and breeding may be equal, yet there is a distinction between the "white-collared" man's job and the other extreme.

This is one of the reasons why more young men are not making bigger wages today.

When society excludes a man of real worth because he toils his hands in pursuit of an honorable living, no matter how much he excels in his job, we are bound to hear constantly of the square peg in a round hole trying to earn a living at something for which he is unfitted.

"That's a good idea," said Lance. "I'll go get [illegible] and we'll have a game of stud poker in the parlor."

"But that is gambling," protested the minister.

"Oh, no it isn't," replied his son. "When I am dealing, it's a sure thing."

"After all, I suppose it is better for you to [illegible] than some place out on the streets," reflected his father. "You get your friends and I'll run out and buy a pack of cards for you."

"Good morning, Mrs. Doolittle," said Landlord Godstein. "I heard the baby crying and stopped in to see if there was anything I could do to help you."

"I'm sure it's very kind," replied Mrs. Doolittle. "My husband snores so loudly that the baby wakes up and cries, and it's almost impossible to get the little darling to sleep again."

"I'll tell you how to make your husband stop snoring," suggested Mr. Godstein hopefully. "Tell him to sleep on his side."

"We've tried that," said Mrs. Doolittle, "and it didn't work."

"That's too bad," sympathized the landlord. "I guess the only thing to do is for me to build a sleeping porch for the baby. If it is agreeable to you, I will send a carpenter up here the first thing this afternoon."

"DADDY, will you do me a 'favor'?" asked Hortense Pumpernickel as she kissed the bald spot on her father's head. "Will you do me a favor? I'm going down to Madame Bon Bons to get a few evening gowns and I wanted you to help me pick them out."

"But my dear, I don't know anything about evening gowns," protested Mr. Pumpernickel.

"Oh, yes you do," laughed Hortense. "Madame Bon Bon told me that you often used to help choose the girls choose their gowns before you were married."

"Well, I had to [illegible] about that," admitted her father. "But I'm too busy to go down town this morning. If you'll promise not to say anything about that other matter to your mother, I'll give you $200 and you can get all the gowns you want to."

THE GO-GETTER

A Film Romance from the Sparkling Story by PETER B. KYNE

A Gripping Serial of a Man's Pluck and Resourcefulness and the Faith of a Beautiful Girl

READ THIS FIRST

Bill Peck, one of Uncle Sam's soldiers, receives some bad wounds while fighting in the big war. He has to spend a long time in an army hospital, but finally he is discharged and joyfully he says good-bye to all the pals he is leaving. One of them, Sandy, who will never be able to leave, hates to lose Bill. A friend, Jack Evan, an aviator, comes to usher Bill out into the world again. Bill shows him cards he has had printed announcing himself as an employe of the Ricks Lumber Corporation. Jack laughs at the nerve of the go-getter. Bill throws a tramp overboard and saves a dog from being drowned for biting a woman.

"The Go-Getter," by Peter B Kyne, has been created into a superlative photo play by Cosmopolitan Productions, direction E. H. Griffith, scenario by John Lynch.

Screen Version Novelized

By Jane McLean

REMEMBERING that she had seen Bill sidling his way toward the gate when she had left the establishment some time before, Mary made a plunge.

"Oh, I thought, of course, you were employed by the Ricks people.

"So did I," replied Bill. In fact I was sure of it. You see this card—well, I had a lot of these printed so's I could send him it as soon as I got out of the hospital. I though I was a go getter, but guess I—well, I won't say I'm not, because I am—but anyway, I ran no against a stone wall—"

"Oh, that's it," said Mary, partially reassured.

"I wonder if you've ever heard of him name of Skinner? Say, of all the hard hearted cold proposition, he's the worst."

"Skinner?" asked Mary. "Oh, he must be the general manager."

"That's the man," said Bill, "ever meet him?"

Mary nodded.

"Am I right? Well, he gave me the gate. I don't believe that fellow's got a friend on earth."

"Perhaps," said Mary, "you went to the wrong man—why not try Cappy Ricks? He's the real head of the concern and when you want anything I've always found it worth while to go to the top."

"There's a whole lot in that. I'll do it, too — you've been mighty nice to suggest it and — I won't be gone long — would I be asking too much—would you mind holding the dog till I come back?"

Would Not Mind

"Why, so, I wouldn't mind," answered Mary, wondering into what sort of adventure she had let herself wander. "That is if you won't be long."

"Only long enough to land the job I'm after." He again took off his hat and started for the office entrance.

This time the girl inside questioned his card. "Mr. Ricks is expecting me," he informed her with a smile; when she departed with the card he followed her and after she had reappeared just outside of Cappy's door he put his foot over the sill.

"Oh," she gave a little squeal, "Mr. Ricks says"—

She got no further. Bill pushed by her into the room and found himself facing the quizzical eyes of Cappy Ricks, whose glance, like Skinner's, alternated between him and the card the girl had given him.

Bill smiled; as a go getter his smile was part of his equipment.

"Who hired you?" asked Cappy, voicing the same sentiment that Skinner had expressed.

And again Mr. Peck explained how and why and where. Cappy started to tear up the card; Bill put out a protesting hand: "Oh, I wouldn't do that if I were you."

Mr. Ricks raised his head and his eye caught the glint of the button that Bill wore on his lapel.

"By the pink-toed prophet," cried Cappy, "you talk like a man who doesn't expect to be refused a job."

"I'm a lumber salesman," said Bill, "but I realize the first thing I've got to do is to sell myself."

Cappy Rick's eyes were still on the service button. "You win, young man," he said, "but you'll have to see Mr. Skinner, our general manager—I've retired from active business.

Mr. Peck became confidential. "I'll take your word for the job—I've already seen Mr. Skinner and all I could get from him was an opinion that ex-soldiers were the bunk.

Cappy's admiration of the service button and what it stood for had not been lost on Bill. He went right on: "So why can't you give me the job over his head?"

"I'll do it," shouted Cappy with a grin, possibly seeing a chance to get back at Skinner. Bill grinned with him when a sudden thought struck him. "I hope you're not doing this out of charity, because if you are, you'll be disappointed."

"That's all right, young man," said Cappy; "I believe you're a go-getter—I'm staking my reputation on that, and it's up to you to prove I'm right."

"Leave it to me," said Bill joyfully.

Cappy Ricks pressed a button and the same stenographer who had ushered Bill into the inner sanctum appeared. "Ask Mr. Skinner to come in," said Cappy, looking forward to a pleasurable moment when his general manager faced Bill.

Mr. Skinner, carrying the skunk spruce deal with him, answered the summons, wondering if Cappy had found an unsuspicious customer. He found his partner by the window pointing out the extent of the Ricks plant to Bill. He observed that the older man's cigar had gone out and that the younger one was politely holding a light for him.

Skinner announced his presence with a bland exclamation: Cappy turned and with a wave of the hand that included the new salesman announced blandly:

"My dear partner, Mr. Peck has decided he wants to sell lumber for our concern."

Skinner's eyes glared as Cappy, enjoying himself hugely, went on: "I told him I never did anything without your approval and that you might be willing to give him a chance, how about it?"

Mr. Skinner waxed wroth and sarcastic. "I supposed you've settled it," he snorted. "All I'm getting out of it is a vote of thanks."

"That's fine, then," said Cappy, as though Skinner had acquiesced: "mighty good of you, Skinner, to give him a show—he's been a soldier, I see."

"Huh," grunted Skinner. "Well, what do you want him to start in on—have you settled that, too?"

"Oh, my dear partner, that's for you to say. He says he can sell lumber"——

"What kind of lumber?" demanded Skinner.

"Any kind," answered Bill.

"All right, sir; I've got a list here of some fine stuff, some very choice skunk spruce. How about starting in on that?"

"Give it to me," said Bill. "I can sell anything. You don't care who buys it?"

"Sell it," said Skinner, succinctly.

"It's sold," said Bill, holding out a hand to Skinner, who, loath as he was to take it, somehow found himself doing so. "I'll take this list home with me, work on it and report for duty tomorrow morning. Thank you, everybody."

"I like that young man," said Cappy.

Service Button

"You'd like anything with a service button," sneered Skinner.

"That wasn't quite fair, palming off that sprues on him, though."

Skinner grinned. "He says he can sell anything—we'll see."

And he left the room feeling he had put one over on Cappy and certain that Bill Peck would fall down on the commission.

After he had gone Cappy pulled the pad towards him and wrote in his large scrawly hand:

"Hired Bill Peck, today, am certain he'll make good."

Bill Peck had all the elation of the go-getter; he had tried once and failed; he had tried again and succeeded and in the sense of relief he had renewed his faith in himself; he was now a salesman in regular trading with the great Ricks corporation and he was going to make good.

He beamed as he emerged into the open and saw Mary still holding the dog by the cord. He went up to her, almost forgetting his limp, he was so happy and delighted with his success.

"Well, I landed it—thanks to you and the dog."

"That's fine," said Mary; she was singularly glad that he had landed it. He must have something to him to win over Cappy Ricks, Cappy was known as a keen judge of men and if Cappy had set the seal of approval on this young man, then he must be all right.

"I know you'd like Cappy," said Mary.

"You bet, I like him; he's not much like that human icicle, Skinner."

"Oh he's not so bad when you come to know him—he's my father."

The young man looked at her almost with terror. She laughed, as though she enjoyed the situation as much as he didn't. "It's all right," said Mary. "You couldn't know he was my father when you talked to him, and a frank confession never hurt anybody."

"That's wonderful of you," said Bill. "I'll hope to see you again to—let you know how the—that is, how the dog here is getting along."

Mary smiled. "Thank you, Mr. Peck."

She stood looking at him, and Bill, having nothing further to say, made the proper salute and walked off, leading the dog. Mary was watching him when her father's voice broke in on her revery:

"Hello, Mary, let's drive around a while; I'm all frazzled—never saw such a day!"

Without a further word the general manager climbed into the car, and Mary started out of the driveway. On the road to the city they passed Bill Peck and the dog.

FOXY GRANDPA STORY

AN ODD SAILOR IN LAPLAND

NO, children, although I've been nearly everywhere, I've never been to the North Pole. But I've been in the Arctic regions—away up north in Lapland.

Lapland is in the north of Europe, where people drive in sleighs pulled by reindeers—just like the reindeers of Santa Claus!

And when it gets too cold away up North the people come South and try to get warm in the sunshine.

Lapland is full of squirrels and they travel too, to find the warm weather. In fact, everybody in that country seems always on the lookout for new animals.

We came to a beautiful lake and sat down on the bank. The lake was like a big mirror. There was just enough wind to cause the slightest ripple now and then.

Bobby finally said:

"My, I would like to have a toy boat to sail here! There's room. I guess we would be, too, if we lived there.

One day I was wandering through the woods in Lapland with Bunny and Bobby, listening to the strange sounds and on the just enough wind to make it sail fine."

Just then we noticed a big fat squirrel near us. He gave one bound and leaped up on the trunk of a tree.

I whispered:

"Be quiet. Let's watch him and see if a Lapland squirrel is different from our squirrels."

We never moved and he immediately got busy. He tugged and chewed and chewed at the trunk of that tree until he loosened a large piece of bark.

Then, as neatly as you please, he cut off a section of it and carried it down to the ground.

"What's he going to do with that?" Bobby whispered.

Bunny put up his paw and said softly:

"Just you wait!"

The little squirrel worked his way to the water's edge, dragging the heavy piece of bark with him. Then he pushed it into the water and hopped right on it.

Bobby, Bunny and I were breathless. The wind was blowing from the shore, and it started to drive him out into the lake. I felt like running down to rescue him, but he seemed to know his business, and I sat still on the bank.

The squirrel balanced himself on his little bark, and then he spread his wide, fluffy tail in the air.

The wind caught his furry sail, and off he went right straight across the lake, as straight as an arrow. He used his paws like rudders on each side—just as a sailor would.

We sat there, too surprised to speak. Finally I said:

"Well, Bobby, you may not have a sailboat, but you've seen a wonderful little sailor man."

How Bunny finds a new kind of sailor to mend Bobby's trousers, in tomorrow's story.

TELL IT AT DINNER

A stout, elderly farmer called on a lawyer and explained that he wished to make a will. "I'll leave my brass to the wife," he said; "we've been married thirty years." The lawyer prepared to receive particulars. "What's your wife's Christian name?" he asked. The farmer scratched his head, thought, scratched his head again, and said he couldn't remember. The solicitor thought of a ruse. "Walk to that door," he suggested, "and call upstairs as if you were calling her." The farmer did so, and called out, "Missus!"

PECULIARITY OF CORN

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

"I am much interested in all your articles and would like to ask if there is any explanation of the following freak or perfection fact in nature: We see four, five, and even six and seven, leaf clover stems and other unusual growths in any (nearly) plant, grain, or vegetable, except just one, viz., corn. There has never been an ear of corn found with an odd number of rows of kernels of corn. The rows are always an even number. Can this be explained? I remember when a small boy of hunting through my father's corn crib, for hours at a time, for the coveted odd-rowed ear of corn, for which our teacher had offered a prize. Needless to say the prize was never won.—C. B. Wilcox, Lawrence, Mich."

EVERYBODY must feel an interest in so distinctively an American plant as corn, or Indian corn, the glory of our late Summer and Autumn fields. It is the most picturesque of cultivated food plants. Its striking aspect recalls its first cultivators, the American Indians, with their lithe forms and waving plumes.

What Mr. Wilcox says of the practicability of an even number of rows of kernels on the ears, accords with what I myself always heard when I was like him, a boy in a "corn country."

I certainly never saw an ear of corn with an odd number of rows, although in other respects the ears are variable, as in size, color of kernel, etc. Once in a while, for instance, a few red kernels can be found scattered among the gold-colored ones, and everybody has heard of the rare red ears to the finding of which Indian maidens, as well as white ones among the early settlers, attached so much sentimental importance.

If corn has never developed a variation from the rule of even rows it is probably because a change would not afford any advantage to the plant, and so there has been no tendency toward the production and preservation of a variety of that kind. Looking over the list of seven of the most important cultivated varieties, I do not find among them any example of ears with odd-rowed kernels. The number of rows, however, varies from sixteen up to twenty-four.

Once in a while a six-fingered six-toed human appears, but although the peculiarity seems occasionally to recur among descendants, you might safely at any time bet against the finding of a six-fingered person in any crowd, or in any particular town or city.

CORNS

Doesn't hurt a bit. Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly!

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes.

Do pleasant climates help to make people pleasant? Hallelujahs are noted for their cordiality and the South is also noted for its hospitality and courtesy.

Is there something in the mild Winters that tends to humble those who suffer from them?

My present impressions in the South have suggested these thoughts:

Somehow, southern folks, the Westerners, give one the impression that they are glad to take time to be polite, considerate and helpful. They don't hustle along with the New York "how-do-you-do-good-bye" air and manner. The Western business man once said to me that most New Yorkers asked the same question right off the reel. The first was, "When did you arrive?" and the second was, "When do you leave?" He added that the customary salutation in the West was, "I am very glad to see you. I hope we are going to have you with us quite a while."

Money making is not the be all and end all of the Southern man's life. Life to him consists of living.

Here is the sort of thing which helps to raise one's estimate of human nature. At a dinner given me by some of the prominent bankers and business men of Tampa, unsolicited by me, the store the amount of his salary is theoretically added to the capital of the house, and the employee receives exactly the same rate of dividends on his year's salary as the owners receive. For example, if the employee is getting $5,000 a year and the dividend paid is 10 per cent the employee receives a $500 dividend check.

He declared that the arrangement had worked out very satisfactorily from the point of view of both the owners and the employee.

Another interesting and rather amusing thing I noted. For when I asked him about the handling of colored employees, was that he took no part nor interest in the disciplining of these workers, but that this is attended to entirely by a high class colored gentleman of the old school, whose sole line is preaching. All the colored workers are accountable to this functionary for their conduct. His discipline, when discipline becomes necessary, is of the old-fashioned variety; he simply takes them out to the back yard and gives them a spanking.

If I were to attempt the role of prophet I would hazard the opinion that the most important agricultural, industrial and financial developments in this country during the next generation will come, not in the crowded parts of the East or the already well populated Middle West, but in the South and the Far West.

* * *

From every point of view it is better that uncrowded sections of the country possessing great potential wealth should receive more people than that more people should squeeze into our most crowded cities.

It is entirely possible that the stampede into the cities will cease before very long and that a back to the country movement of importance will set in.

Sugars Establish Fresh Highs, Then React on News of Government Suit

DULLNESS DUE TO BOSTON CLOSING

Sugar stocks established fresh highs on the New York Exchange, then reacted on news the government had filed suit to oust the Sugar Exchange from dealing in sugar. Money renewed at 4 then lowered to 4½ per cent.

The market was very dull, due in part to the absence of Boston traders on account of the holiday. Closing of the Boston Stock Exchange, and the general abstinence in the local financial district.

SUGAR SLUMP GENERAL

New highs for 1923 were made by Punta Alegre Sugar, South Porto Rico Sugar, Brooklyn Rapid Transit securities which benefit, Hayes Wheel, American Radiator and Wright Aero. Reynolds Spring sold at its previous high. Cuban American Sugar was within ½ of its 1922 top.

Kresge jumped 14½ points. American Chicle preferred 4 and Davison Chemical 3. Lissett and Myers U dropped 7¼.

The slump in the sugar group showed Punta Alegre, Cuban American, Menall, Cuba Cane and Atlantic Sugar all down off about 2 points from their day's highs.

Rails softened after early firmness. Fuller Lehigh added a point and Canadian Pacific 2¾.

Oils were mostly steady. Marland added more than 2 points. Pan American Petroleum, Phillips Petroleum, Standard Oil of California and New Jersey Standard gave way about a point.

Tex Pore dipped 1½ from its day's high, while General Motors, which had large holdings, sold fractionally lower after starting higher.

COPPERS STRENGTHEN.

Stewart-Warner sold 1½ points after its early firmness. Baldwin Locomotive is a half-way rally. American Can showed a gain of better than 2 points on the day. National Lead rose 3¾ to 131.

United Drug backed up more than 4 points. Loss to the Hayes Wheel went up 1¾ at 42¾.

Coppers strengthened on inactive trading. Utah added more than a point. New buying movement in copper, according to belief expressed, will set in from time to time as the anti-cartel drive continues. It is stated that while a few days has limited amount of second hand copper available for less than this price, it has all been cleaned up, and is, therefore, in better availability.

All producers, except Chile Copper and Miami, are reported to be willing to do normal business now at 17 cents a pound.

Hearst Prophecy True: High Wages Are Making Prosperity in America

On October 30, 1922, William Randolph Hearst wrote an editorial condemning the wage reductions of the Railroad Labor Board and pointing out how wages for workingmen are the first condition of general welfare.

The flood of prosperity which is now sweeping the entire country is accompanied by generous wage increases, including an additional $25,000,000 to the 150,000 men on the labor payroll of the United States Steel Corporation.

Mr. Hearst's prophecy of last October is being fulfilled. It said:

When wages are high the workingman and his family buy freely, the shops prosper, store stocks are exhausted, the factories are overwhelmed with orders and the fullest market prevails for raw material furnished by the farm and the mine.

Do you, fellow business men, who own a store, fail to realize that the hand which reduces wages dips into your till to deprive you of a proportionate part of your patronage and your profits?

Do you, fellow business men, who run a factory, fail to realize that your orders come from those shops and are dependent in turn upon the patronage and prosperity of those shops?

Do you, fellow farmers and fellow miners, fail to realize that the demand for your products depends upon the demands from the shops, and that the orders from the shops depend upon the prosperity and patronage of those shops, which are in turn dependent upon the prosperity of the wage earners, the greatest individual element in the whole nation?

The conditions of prosperity are a very economic house that Jack built and the foundation of the house is the welfare of the worker, based on good wages and consequent high purchasing power.

Gov. Cox's Patriots' Day Proclamation

April is a most significant month in American history. All the great wars that the country has waged—the Revolutionary, the Civil, the Spanish and the World Wars—had their beginnings in that month. April brings the anniversaries of certain events which are of utmost concern to the nation and of deep and particular interest to Massachusetts.

While the battles of Lexington and Concord gave birth to a spirit which united a people into a nation, they gave dramatic demonstration of the patriotism which burned in the hearts of the sons of Massachusetts. The anniversary of those battles has been set apart by legislative enactment as a holiday for the special commemoration of the services of those who made the first brave stand for independence.

Such an anniversary is a fitting time each year for the reaffirmation of our love of country and our continued support of those free institutions in the establishment of which our forebears gave leadership. It is peculiarly appropriate that Massachusetts should on that day testify that her people have kept the faith of the fathers. Therefore, I call upon the people of the Commonwealth for a true observance of Thursday, April 19th, as PATRIOTS' DAY.

The surviving veterans' organizations of all the wars and their organized descendants living in the capital city are to parade in Boston on the morning of that day. Detachments of the regular army, the navy and the National Guard will join in that parade—all attesting to their devotion to country and their support of the principles of justice, liberty and equality upon which our system of government is based.

I ask all good citizens for generous help in such a worthy demonstration. Let each city and town in some appropriate manner recall the meaning of the day, and in united effort let Massachusetts proclaim to the country that we glory in the sacrifice and service which has made democracy a success, and proclaim our faith that a loyal American people will achieve their noblest destiny. CHANNING H. COX.

Senator Borah—

You'd Be Surprised

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

This news will interest Senator Borah, fierce lion of the Western plains. He says things that occasionally disturb the sweet slumber of big financiers, yet this happened.

One of the Senator's young friends was discussing him with a partner of one of the two biggest houses in Wall Street.

"We don't exactly like Borah," said that partner, "but we look upon him as our best bet. We feel here that we must have the League of Nations, and Borah can come nearer than anybody else to giving it to us."

Mr. Borah will be surprised to find himself a best bet in Wall Street. But that's what he is.

They want the League of Nations; it means bonds, commissions, profits. They love anybody that tries to give them their league, back door or front door.

Silent Bells in Bavaria

They Worry North Germany

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

North Germany is agitated because the church bells of Bavaria were the only church bells in Germany that did not ring in sympathy with the funeral of Krupp workers recently shot by French soldiers.

It is known that Foch's plan is to separate Bavaria and, if possible, other parts of South Germany from North Germany. The Germans fear that silence of Bavarian church bells may mean partial success.

MEXICO TO HELP WITH SUGAR

WASHINGTON, April 19.—Mexico will help her sister republic to the north in any sugar crisis that may arise. The production is 150,000 tons yearly, a large part of which is available for export. This amount puts Mexico in seventh place among sugar-raising nations.

As a side line, the sugar mills produce alcohol, wines, pulque and beer. Edibles are far ahead of liquids, however, and the dinner pail of the Mexican laborer is more nearly full than the oldest of them can remember.

Knowing a Woman

Editor Boston American:

Eric von Stroheim, the movie director, says he fully understands women. Rodolph Valentino says any man who claims to understand women is either an idiot or an imbecile. It's a certainty the former never met my wife. Also a certainty the latter doesn't need to in order to strengthen his convictions. I've been acquainted with her for seventeen years, but I'm not even bragging now about knowing her.

Water Power

Editor Boston American:

You have written editorials about wasted water power in this State. Who are responsible for the waste? Electric power to drive street cars and for other purposes is made from coal, but it should come from the water power not now utilized. Stir up the matter again.

Gives Five Dollars

Editor Helping Hand:

Please split the enclosed five dollars between Mrs. W. H., whose appeal was in Wednesday's Boston American, and W. W. W., whose letter appears in current issue. I hope that you will keep up the good work. I have been reading the Hearst papers since Mr. Hearst purchased the New York Journal, but nothing that has appeared in any of them has so much appealed to me as your column. It should not be discontinued, I think, while there is one needy reader and another to answer an appeal.

NEMO.

ED. NOTE — Many thanks indeed. The willingness of readers to lend a helping hand to those stumbling over the rocky places in life's journey has been an eye-opener to all who have to do with this column, and from a very modest beginning it has grown until the editor sometimes wishes he had four or five full pages for it.

Alger Books Gone

Editor Helping Hand:

I would like to receive the Alger books offered by Mrs. C. E. M. I am a crippled boy of fourteen and am very fond of reading books.

S. J. B.

ED. NOTE — Sorry, but the Alger books have been promised to another lad. There may be other offers, though.

Donated $2

Editor Helping Hand:

Enclosed please find two dollars for W. W. W. Hope it will do some good. Sorry I cannot give more. Hope the old gentleman will get more replies than this. A word of praise for your wonderful work.

M. C. P.

ED. NOTE—It will do a lot of good. Many thanks.

$5 for the Aged Man

Editor Helping Hand:

I enclose my check for $5 for W. W. W., the seventy-one-year-old man who wrote in last night. I have no clothes to give him, but this money will at least purchase some underwear for him. Several times I have been put in touch with worthy families through the Basket Fund at Christmas and have been able to do a little for them during the cold months. This column is a helping hand indeed, for it puts in touch those that have to give and those that need. Yours for greater success.

MRS. M. D. M.

ED. NOTE—Many thanks indeed. I think your gift will buy W. W. W. a great many things he needs.

A Sympathizer

Editor Helping Hand:

Kindly send me Elizabeth R.'s address. I remember when I was nine and the kids called me names, too. Poor little tot.

A. S.

ED. NOTE—Funny, but children are both more cruel and more sensitive than their elders. I think Elizabeth R. will be glad to hear from one so sympathetic.

Girl in Hospital

Editor Helping Hand:

I wonder if the readers of this column will help a dear little girl that has been in the hospital for the past fours years? This young lady has no clothes, no money and very little happiness, as she has no parents and is practically alone in the world. What she would like is anything to do in the fancy work line, and she would do it reasonably. She is twenty years old.

M. C. B.

Twin Baby Carriage

Editor Helping Hand:

I have a good Heywood Wakefield twin baby carriage that I will give to some needy mother.

MRS. K. J. B.

ED. NOTE—Many thanks indeed. Mrs. V. H., who has been deprived of her husband's support and who needs a twin carriage, will be put in touch with you.

Needs Clothes Badly

Editor Helping Hand:

I wonder if some kind person could help me, too. This Winter I have taken all my own clothes to make over for my children, so they could keep warm, so I need clothes very badly for myself. I would also like clothes for my baby, three months old, and my two sons, five and two. I am twenty-eight years old and wear size 40.

HOW PROSPERITY CHANGES WATER INTO GOLD

By Herbert Kaufman

THE Steel Corporation has increased its assets a billion dollars since organization.

There's industrial alchemy for you. Behold how prosperity changes water into gold!

The late J. P. Morgan, who organized the company, capitalized his confidence in America's growth to the extent of hundreds of millions and was nationally condemned for inflating the then existing value of component plants beyond all apparent justification. Within twenty years balance sheets declare that Morgan was an unimaginative conservative.

Judge Gary, assuring stockholders of their sound investment, condemns present immigration statutes as the most malific legislation manufacturing must deal with.

Figures talk, and when national figures talk in billions the country owes them its ears.

Training Station and Boarding House for Europe

Judge Gary, however, discusses immigration entirely from the standpoint of an employer. His conclusions are based upon very profitable experience with alien labor. Community experience has not been so satisfactory.

Wages paid in Pennsylvania and Indiana have benefited Europe more than the United States. They for the most part rest in foreign, not local banks.

However loyally unnaturalized workers have served crucible and forge, they have rendered slight service to the government under which they prosper.

America is not opposed to immigration. How may a land mainly, developed by immigrant brains and energy, logically protest against further instruments of expansion?

We want more people here—we need them—but not more opportunists. This continent cannot safely become a training station and boarding house for overcrowded Europe.

A Proper Fear, Not Unreasonable Prejudice

We protest against any addition to the already too great alien content of the republic.

Congress serves a proper fear, not an unreasonable prejudice, when it establishes strict quotas and limits the ingress of unassimilating multitudes.

As stated before in this column, we entertain at the moment more strangers to our flag than there were inhabitants in the original colonies when the Declaration of Independence was signed.

If Judge Gary and the heads of other vast institutions will undertake to reduce the unsatisfactory percentage of non-citizens now on their payrolls—if they will stimulate the absorption of this mass into America's blood stream, Washington will soon learn of a general demand for reopened gates.

Income Taxes, Chewing Gum and Will o' the Wisps

Washington will do well to learn how other powers manage to lessen budgets so much sooner than we seem able to readjust overhead.

Britain fought twice as long in the great war and suffered corresponding losses. Yet Parliament contrives to reduce taxes about 2½ per cent. and promises even greater relief for the immediate future. While business here staggers under indefensible surtaxes, half of corporation profit taxes there are to be instantly remitted, minor excise duties done away with, postal rates lowered and telephone charges cut.

Senator Smoot, who last week didn't believe we should disturb income rates, would now free candy and chewing gum from Federal charges. How that man does watch out for beet sugar constitutents!

If Mr. Harding seriously considers continuation of his White House lease he'll follow Bonar Law's lead in the matter of domestic economies instead of Lord Cecil's will o' the wisp. The majority vote has a deeper interest in lower cost of living than in world courts.

On the subject of sugar the President is advised not to accept Senator Smoot as a leader.

The Works of Justice, Profiteers and Millionaires

The Committee on Necessities of Life in Massachusetts is unable to discover a sugar shortage. Nobody ever claimed that there was any relation between production and reduction. Profiteers don't work that way.

Henry G. Brock, Philadelphia banker, drunk at the wheel of a speeding motor car which kills three people, has been sentenced to the penitentiary for a minimum period of six years.

Not long ago a decrepit negro was convicted of theft by an upstate court and sent to jail for almost the same term. He stole two cents. That's the way justice, blind, but able to hear expensive lawyers, works.

The Morris family, retiring from the packing business, makes an outright gift of $500,000 to old employes. Every millionaire's dollar isn't in greed's pocket. Soviet Russia is requested to consider how capital sometimes works.

Stick 'Em in a National Pillory

Florida continues to check up on convict camp cruelties. A local Senator is exposed as a direct beneficiary of the peonage system. One ventures to predict his defeat at the next State election. No Commonwealth can keep its pride and maintain a slaver in office.

A list of all the lumber operators who have derived fortunes out of cruelty and murder should follow. Men who make that sort of money deserve a national pillory. Publish their names and the system will die in the disgrace of its promoters.

When Chicago traced the ownership of dwellings devoted to vice half the crusade against its red light district was won.

The meanest loan shark in the West closed his offices and fled abroad after newspapers followed him to the high social circles in which he had moved for years.

Printer's ink's the cure for social wrongs.
